Police Car In Accident

Warren Borough Police investigated two accidents on Monday. The first involved a pedestrian that was struck by a car operated by James Ross Munksgard, 16, of 103 Jefferson st. at 5:17 p.m. According to Patrolman James P. Nelson who investigated, Edward Kusio, 56, of 18 Marrer st. was crossing Pennsylvania ave. east of Central st. when the Munksgard vehicle struck him. Kusio was taken to Warren General Hospital where he was treated and released.

The second mishap occurred several minutes later as officer James Urey was taking Kusio to the hospital and a car operated by Thomas Knapp Creal III of 14 Hill st. failed to yield the right of way and pulled out of South Carver st. and struck the Warren Borough Police Car operated by Urey.

Damage to the police car was estimated at $1600.00 and at $500.00 to the Creal vehicle. Creal was charged with a right of way violation.

McGovern

for that. McGovern evidently hoped to allay the concerns of governors who believe his personal platform is too liberal for the liking of Southerners and some Democrats elsewhere.

Humphrey planned to go to Houston Wednesday, after the pivotal primary in California.

The man who wins in California will get 271 votes for the Democratic presidential nomination. Eighteen votes are at stake in New Mexico.

New Jersey Democrats will elect 109 convention delegates. McGovern campaign managers said they expected to pick up about two-thirds of them.

In South Dakota, McGovern is unopposed for the 17 convention votes of his home state, in the day's other primary.

New Jersey's polls open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m. EDT. But the count of delegate contests is expected to be slow, and it may be days before the exact outcome is known.

In California, where the candidates spent their time and money trying to persuade 5.1 million registered Democrats, a turnout of about 75 per cent of the party's voters was forecast.

The California voting hours are 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. EDT.

There are eight names on the Democratic ballot in California, plus a write-in effort for wounded Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace. But it is a winner-take-all primary, and that means McGovern and Humphrey are the only entries with a chance.

In New Mexico, the ballot lists them along with Wallace and three others. The two top finishers will divide the 18-vote delegation on a proportional basis.

The polls in New Mexico open at 10 a.m. EDT, close at 9 p.m. EDT.

Loot

after Hahneman turned himself in to U.S. Embassy officials.

Bliss said Hahneman told him he delivered the bag full of cash to an unknown intermediary in Honduras the night of May 5.

"He just said he accomplished his mission by Monday night," said the agent. "The money was out of his hands. He said it (the money) was coming back to the U.S., but first it was going to a bank in Honduras and then was to be channeled back to the U.S. after going through the Bank of Communist China in Hong Kong.

"He said it would wind up assisting people with whom he was working in Central and South America," said Bliss.

However, under cross-examination, Bliss said that Hahneman was "strongly anti-Communist, that he leaned to the far right. He didn't specify exactly what he meant by far right."

In New York, warrants were issued for a young couple who hijacked a Western Airlines jet from San Francisco to Algeria Saturday with $500,000 in ransom money.

The warrants were for the arrest of Willie Roger Holder, 23, of San Diego, Calif., and Catherine Mary Kerkow, 20, of Coos Bay, Ore., who have asked for political asylum in Algeria.

The Algerian government said it is considering the request. The U.S. State Department said it was negotiating for the return of the money.

The complaint said the pilot and copilot of the hijacked Western plane had identified the two from pictures.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Edward Boyle said the case would be presented Tuesday to a grand jury in hopes the Algerian government will agree to extradition.

The money from the United plane, hijacked from Reno, was found Sunday night, the FBI in Las Vegas said. The rest of the $200,000 ransom was left on the 727 jet when the hijacker parachuted out early Saturday.

Problems Of Thievery, Littering Engage Youngsville Councilmen

By FRANCES RHODES

YOUNGVILLE — Weekend thievery, rowdism and littering were discussed at Monday's meeting of Youngsville borough council, and resulted in a decision to seek a meeting with advisers and leaders of the Youngsville Brotherhood of Youth Club. The streets, parking and street lighting committee (councilmen Natale, Arnold, Kane and Davis) will "ask for the ideas" of the youth center on solving the problems that have arisen.

A truckload of baked goods was unloaded at the Morley Red & White Store on W. Main st. on Sunday night and "every bit" was stolen before morning, it was stated. The police have "good leads," and a solution is expected shortly, said borough manager George Probst. Minor thefts from such deliveries have occurred before.

Another problem at the same location concerns the scattering of empty drink cans on the parking lot, especially at weekends. The lot is much used on the evenings and weekends by young people visiting the nearby youth center.

One shopper recently punctured a car tire on debris in the lot. Lyle Morley, owner of the store, says his employees have picked up as many as two bushel baskets full of cans, before the store could open for the day.

Other business operators in the neighborhood complain of street and rear yard littering. Councilmen commented that "most of the kids who use the center are good kids," and deserve a place where they can meet, but "a few rotten apples will spoil the barrel."

The view was also expressed that some of the problems probably arise because the club's existence is a magnet for out-of-town youths who, unable to gain admission, "carry on" outside.

One speaker pointed out that the town is well-supplied with refuse cans, provided by the business people of the community, so that there is no excuse for discarded drink cans and other debris being thrown on the streets and parking lots.

The litter can on the corner near the youth center is now "a wreck," he said, because it has been abused rather than used.

Donald Abraham, a borough resident, attended the council meeting to ask for "clarification" of "talk" about recent actions of the police committee and council concerning appointment of a borough police chief. He wanted to know if Larry Weidenborner, rehired as police chief a month after resigning because he had not met a requirement to take up residence in the town, would be a "sit down chief," or a working chief. He was assured that Weidenborner "is capable of doing the job he was hired to do." Council agreed with Abraham that the town could not afford a purely administrative chief.

In response to a question, it was stated that Weidenborner has not yet taken up his duties because the apartment he has rented in the borough is not ready for occupancy. Sgt. Richard Crull is acting police chief.

The borough manager said it had been necessary to borrow $7400 in May on the borough's bank line of credit, and he anticipated that $7800 would have to be borrowed to continue operating through June, pending tax receipts. He also predicted that if the Pennsylvania Electric Company's requests to the Public Utility Commission for two rate increases are granted, the bill will come to $7816 a year additional cost to the borough—an increase of 18 per cent.

"Even if they only get the Phase A increase, I don't see how it can help but mean a tax increase for the borough in 1973," said Probst.

Council approved a recommendation of the fire committee that the number of part-time employees operating the emergency telephone service be increased from two to three, sharing the work load between them. One reason for the proposed change is to make scheduling easier and more flexible. The jobs will pay $500 a year each, a total additional increase of $300 in expense to the borough. One of the two present operators—both women—has indicated she wishes to quit because of the present scheduling difficulties. Under the proposed arrangement, operators would work only every third week. Persons, either male or female, interested in the work are invited to apply to the borough manager.

Conewango Improvement Assn. Discusses Actions

Actions to support the proposed sewage treatment of discharges into Chautauqua Lake, to improve the borough-owned land at the mouth of Conewango Creek, and to control of silting conditions on Hatch Run due to road construction were taken Monday night at a meeting of the Conewango Improvement Association held in the hospitality room of the Northwest Savings and Loan.

Letters will be written to various legislators and agency heads stating the organization's position on these matters.

In other action, a board of directors was elected consisting of Don Dorn, Warren; Julius Thorn, North Warren; Michael W. Schultz, Sugar Grove; Guy Sommerson, Sugar Grove Township; William H. Mallison, Pine Grove Township; James J. Palmer, Glade Township; R.L. Burgell, Farmington Township; Robert F. Christensen, Elk Township; and Robert Dilks and Lowell W. Edminster, delegates-at-large. Two more directors will be appointed by the board of directors at their first official meeting to be held in the near future.

Several possible projects leading to the improvement of the Conewango and its water quality were discussed.

Following adjournment, a lengthy film illustrating the various polluting conditions on the Conewango watershed was shown by Valentine Botka Jamestown, N.Y.

Loophole Closing: No; Tax Reform: Next Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's administration said no Monday to tax-loophole closing this year, but promised to work with Congress in 1973 on a comprehensive review of the revenue code.

Officials took this position as they asked the House Ways and Means Committee to approve a $15-billion temporary raise in the national debt ceiling, to $465 billion through March 1, 1973.

Backing up the request were new estimates of budget deficits—$26 billion for the year ending June 30 and $27 billion for the following year. These figures were an improvement over earlier estimates but partly because the government through miscalculation is withholding too much income tax from individuals this year—about $6 billion worth.

Budget Director George P. Shultz said the administration favors the purpose of a bill that would force a review of the dozens of special tax provisions by bringing them up for repeal over the next three years.

But he told Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., of the Ways and Means Committee, author of the measure, "as to the method, we have some problems."

Nevertheless, he said, "we are anxious to sit down with this committee and work on it next year."

But Shultz said the administration is flatly opposed to attaching any tax-reform legislation to the debt-ceiling bill for immediate consideration, as a number of Democrats are proposing.

He noted that, unless Congress completes action on the legislation by June 30, the debt ceiling would drop automatically to $400 billion, some $25 billion less than the actual outstanding debt.

"Here it is June 5," Shultz said. "The deadline is June 30 ... To think we could do any meaningful review of the revenue code in 25 days is out of the question."

Mills' proposal to bring about review of the revenue code through a gradual repeal proposal ran into sharper criticism from the senior Republican member of the Ways and Means Committee, Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin.

"You don't have to repeal a law to study a law," Byrnes said. "... I can't think of anything more likely to disrupt confidence just when business is getting its feet on the ground."

Meanwhile top Treasury officials insisted that an internal memorandum in that department that became known last week was simply a study paper, not the draft of a tax reform proposal.

The memorandum, by Asst. Secretary Edwin S. Cohen, discussed the effects of ending the special low taxation of capital gains, but lowering the whole rate structure to a maximum of 35 per cent.

Pine Woods Inn Hit By Burglars

State police at the Corry substation are investigating a breakin at Pine Woods Inn that took place sometime between midnight and 1:30 p.m. Friday.

Police said burglars broke a rear window to enter the inn and got away with an estimated $250 from the coin boxes of a cigarette machine and pool table as well as from the cash register. Thomas Kysor, owner of the inn, discovered the breakin when he opened for business.

Tar-Chip Work On Youngsville Roads

Weather permitting, all dirt roads in Youngsville borough are to be given tar-and-chip treatment on Friday, June 9. Announcing the project, borough manager George Probst said Monday that hopefully the work will be completed in the one day.

The tar truck will be followed by the chip truck as quickly as is practicable. No barricades will be erected. Residents are requested to cooperate by not driving on the fresh tar before the chips are laid down. This is the third annual tar-and-chip treatment of the borough's 15 dirt roads in a long-range program of surface improvement.

Woman Jailed

ERIE—A North East woman was sentenced to four Saturdays in jail and 20 hours a week work within the county institution district Friday by Judge George Levin.

Levin, garnering a wide reputation for sentences of an unusual nature, leveled the sentence on Patricia Ester, RD 3, North East, for a charge of false pretenses.

The woman had been charged with using a false name to make clothing purchases at a Harborcreek store.

Drowns In Pool

GROVE CITY — A Venango County man apparently drowned Sunday while with his brothers and sisters in Grove City's community park swimming pool.

Everett McBride Jr., 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett McBride, RD 1, Harrisville, was pronounced dead on arrival at Grove City Hospital about 4:30 p.m. borough police said.

A police spokesman said McBride apparently drowned, but an official ruling had not been issued by Dr. Donald Wonsettler, deputy Mercer County Coroner, pending further investigation.

McBride was only in about four and a half feet of water at the time, police reported.

Far East, South Asia and Europe.

Details of the trip are not firm, said Ronald L. Ziegler, presidential press secretary, but Connally will go first to Venezuela and then to Colombia, Brazil, Argentina, Bolivia and Peru between June 6 and June 14 on the first leg of his journey.

He will depart Key Biscayne Tuesday and be in Caracas June 6-7, Bogota June 7-8, Brazilia June 8-9, Sao Paulo June 9-10, Buenos Aires June 10-12, La Paz June 12-13 and Lima June 13-14.

Ziegler declined to give the names of the other countries on the itinerary but said it could be expected that Connally would go to India and Pakistan and he would not rule out South Vietnam nor Bangladesh.

He said flatly that Connally would not travel to Africa, citing recent visits by Mrs. Nixon and Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

Beasley Assumes Wallace Duties

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — As George C. Wallace continued to show signs of improvement Monday, acting Alabama Gov. Jere Beasley took over the state's highest office and urged President Nixon to proclaim a national day of prayer for Wallace.

Expressing regret that the duties befell him because of Wallace's hospitalization in Maryland, Beasley assured the governor by phone that he would give Wallace's cabinet members his full cooperation.

Perez Pleads Not Guilty In Wife's Death

The accused killer of a Warren native has entered a plea of not guilty at the Sonoma County Court House in Santa Rosa, California, according to acting Sonoma County District Attorney John Hawkes.

Hawkes said Monday a preliminary hearing will be held later this week in the case of David Perez, 31, of Healdsburg, California, who allegedly shot his wife, Jacqueline Sheila Carter Perez on Tuesday, May 30, following a domestic quarrel.

The 32-year-old Mrs. Perez was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Carter of 224 Conewango ave. She died of the wounds received in the fray shortly after 1 a.m. Wednesday morning, May 31.

Perez was arrested and charged with first degree murder. He is being held in the Sonoma County Jail without bail.

According to a Santa Rosa police spokesman Mrs. Perez was allegedly threatening to divorce her husband and he had apparently told neighbors that if she did he would shoot her.

Mrs. Perez had two children by a previous marriage; a boy, 10, and a girl, 8. With Perez she had two daughters, ages 3 and 1-and-a-half. The two older children have reportedly been sent to live with their grandparents in Warren.

County Okays Subdivision Changes

The Warren County Commissioners Monday morning approved an amended version of the county subdivision regulations.

The regulations were updated to comply with Pennsylvania Act 247, the state planning act.

Under the new regulations there are four distinct subdivision classifications: minor-seasonal, minor-permanent, major-seasonal and major-permanent.

Minor subdivisions, according to Dennis Whipple, county planning officer, are those with no more than five lots. Major subdivisions, of course, are those that exceed five lots.

According to the new regulations, the subdivision committee of the Warren County Planning Commission, will have the power to approve all minor subdivisions. Major divisions must be reviewed by the whole commission at their regular monthly meeting.

Whipple said the design standards for seasonal subdivisions, whether major or minor, are less stringent than the standards for permanent developments. "For instance, we're requiring 33-foot road widths in seasonal subdivisions and 50-foot in permanent," he said.

Whipple, who was influential in developing the new regulations, said approximately 50 per cent of the changes were made to comply with the requirements of Act 247. Other changes were added to make the document "basically practical...and not very restrictive."

Many of the changes were very small. For instance, former regulations required that subdivisions be submitted in ink on lined paper. Under the new ordinance the plans may be mechanically copied on lined paper or any similar type or permanent material.

Whipple said the planning commission will work closely with the Board of Health, which recently adopted a subdivision regulation of its own. He said developers who have not passed the Board of Health's regulations, which primarily concern soil quality and sewage treatment capacities, will probably not get the green light from the planning commission either—even if all other requirements are met.

During their Monday meeting the County Commissioners agreed to pay bills for the month of May totaling $109,255.22.

Girl Recovers After Trooper Averts Drowning

PLUMVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Gail Elaine Stenman, 11, was released from Indiana Hospital Monday, two days after she was pulled from the bottom of a swimming pool and revived by a state trooper.

Police said Trooper Kenneth Zinkham, 25, of the Indiana substation, was investigating a missing person report at the home of Mrs. Donna McGahan Saturday when he learned that a girl had fallen in the McGahan's swimming pool.

Zinkham pulled the girl from the pool and applied mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. He maintained the aided breathing until the girl was removed to the

Face The Challenge

Something can be done about drug abuse, and Kiwanis International is doing it. Their continuing Operation Drug Alert program faces up to the challenge of alerting young America to the dangers of drug usage and its related problems.

Kicked off in February of 1969 by the Kiwanis International board of trustees, the program has been continued through each succeeding year up to the present time.

Its purpose, simply stated, is to inhibit, reduce, or eliminate drug abuse within the community; and, to safeguard the community against further incidence. This year's program places particular emphasis on prevention and remedial action at the local level. Local clubs working toward these objectives are assisted by the parent organization through a prepared planning manual and other support materials such as prepared radio announcements, newspaper releases, and "hand out" booklets.

Reports from 4,709 Kiwanis Clubs in the U.S. and Canada, or 88 per cent of the total membership, indicated that in a single year, 1970-71, more than half of these clubs had played a sub-

One Man's View

Normandy-28 Years Ago

By Bob Rogge

Twenty-eight years ago today, some hundreds of thousands of young men of the Allied armies landed on the Normandy beaches in France and began the last, long struggle that defeated Hitler's Germany. Today, the survivors of those legions take pause for a moment to remember those perilous hours and, perhaps, spare a thought or two for those who are still in France, under the crosses.

The day was noisome, windy, cold and unfit for an assault over bare beaches. But the word had gone forth and the word was "Go." So we went. From Caen in the east to Cherbourg in the west the boats went in behind the rocket fusillages and the guns of the naval ships. They went into the booby-trapped shallows and touched down on the mined sands. They poured out their men and their equipment and the swimming tanks churned through the waves until their tracks touched ground, or they swamped with all hands and are still there in the depths.

Omaha was the toughest beach. The Germans had moved a battalion or two into position just hours before on, ironically enough, anti-invasion exercises. They got more than they bargained for. To the east, the beaches were not so fiercely defended and the British and Canadians swarmed ashore, leaving enough of their number behind in the shallows and on the sand to keep it from ever being a walk over.

Hours before, in the flaming darkness, the paratroops and the glider troops had gone in, secured their drop zones and fanned back to the beaches, immobilizing some defenses, confusing others, eliminating still others. It was far from a one-sided fight and both sides were hurt.

We dropped our ramps at a beach town called Bernieres-sur-Mer and waded ashore, armpit deep in the salt water, and staggered up the rough shale and through the breached sea wall where the Sherman sat alone and smoking.

Through the town and into the orchards

No Peace Dividend

WASHINGTON— The day after President Nixon gave his report to Congress on his trip to the Soviet Union, I went over to see my friend Hannibal Stone, president of the Association for a Permanent Military-Industrial Complex.

Because the President had announced agreement on the freeze of nuclear weapons with the Soviets, I expected Hannibal to be depressed. Instead, I found him euphoric.

"Hannibal," I said, "How can you be smiling when President Nixon and the Russians are talking about disarmament? Surely this is a blow to the Military-Industrial Complex and all it stands for."

"Wrong," Hannibal said, handing me a cigar. "This is the best thing that could happen to us."

"I don't understand," I said, as he lit my cigar with a Minuteman missile cigarette lighter.

"Russia and the United States have agreed to limit anti-ballistic missiles. They have also agreed to freeze land-based and submarine-based intercontinental missiles at the level now in operation. If it works, they may come to new agreements to limit arms production on other weapons now being made. This means we will have to work twice as hard to develop new weapons that aren't covered by the arms agreements."

"You mean we're not going to save any money by the signing of the arms treaty?"

"Au contraire," Hannibal said. "We will have to spend more money now for defense than ever before."

"Dammit, Hannibal," I said. "I was hoping for a peace dividend."

"Forget the peace dividend," Hannibal said. "In order for the Joint Chiefs of Staff to assure us that we have adequate protection in spite of the arms accord, we're going to have to spend at least another $20 billion in new weaponry—stuff that hasn't even been dreamed of yet."

"I knew the President's speech was too good to be true."

"You must remember," Hannibal said, stantial role in their communities in promoting preventative education. Of these, 913 had carried out independent projects, distributing more than 2,000,000 copies of the two drug education booklets, and nearly 4,000,000 copies of drug information pamphlets available from other sources.

Reporting clubs stated they had sponsored a total of 12,678 public meetings or forums and 63,574 members had given at least an hour of their time to the program.

They had helped initiate, or financially assisted, 685 drop-in centers, 764 hotlines, 164 methadone maintenance programs, 600 halfway houses, and 1,843 other counseling or rehabilitation programs in their communities.

It is this kind of dedication to public service that goes a long ways toward solving and correcting one of the nation's major social problems. It is this kind of public service that makes America a better nation in which to live. Kiwanis International and thousands of local chapters are to be commended for accepting a challenge that has been apparent to all, but to which far too few have responded.

and the hedged, dusty lanes, following the tanks, staring unashamedly at the first dead wearing feld grau in the ditches and hedges. Ahead, the fields and woods were alive with noise and simmered in the cold air that blew from the sea. Smoke lay heavy in long swaths, moving slowly in the wind. And then came the first whip and crack of bullets, the first fluttering fall of the mortars, the instantaneous arrival of the high velocity shells. We scattered and dropped and the war became a part of us.

We were to have taken an airport that day; it lay about three miles inland. It was finally taken in mid-July. We did get as far as a tiny farm village named Beny-sur-Mer, about two miles inland, and dug in at the apple orchard behind the high, thick hedges and sent out our first patrols.

Two mortar bombs exploded in the hedges over our heads and the men went down. An hour later a pair of sweating prisoners were spading out a grave in the little churchyard beside the fieldstone wall and we buried our first casualty. It was evening of June 6, 1944.

Now, twenty-eight years later, they say those beaches are alive with tourists, taking the summer sun, unaware and uncaring of what went before. The magnificent Norman tapestry at Bayeux Cathedral that tells the story of another invasion in 1066, still draws its admiring throngs.

And, scattered here and there among the villages and at the crossroads, are newer monuments to such things. A carved pillar, a bronze plaque; or, more particularly, a stone cairn on the road looking down into Caen. It bears a regimental crest and a few graven words. But—if you stand there on a quiet, windless day and look north toward the beaches—and if you are attuned to such things, you can hear the distant pipes skirling against the sky and the "Long Lament" goes keening down the years, the years....the years.

"the Military-Industrial Complex makes very little money once it is in full production on a weapon. By then everyone knows exactly what the weapon is going to cost, and we can't monkey around with the figures.

"But when we're asked to develop a new weapon, no one can put a price tag on it, and the longer it doesn't work the more money we can ask for to develop it.

"Give me a contract for a weapon no one understands, and I'll give you twice the profits that I would on a weapon that has proved itself in the field."

"Gosh Darn, Hannibal," I said. "I thought one of the reasons the President went to Moscow was to cut down on the spiraling inflation and wasteful money both countries were spending on weapons."

"Maybe he did," Hannibal said. "But the fact is that at this very moment members of the Soviet military-industrial complex are at their drafting boards working on new weapons which are not part of the accords. We can't let the Russians get ahead of us on these weapons" or we will lose the military edge to the other superpower."

"But you don't even know what those weapons are," I protested.

"All the more reason to spend money developing our weapons. I would say that the President's nuclear arms accord is actually a breakthrough for us.

"Now we can come up with any wild idea and Congress will have to buy it. We can say that if we don't have this weapon, the Russians may have one that is much more devastating. The Soviet military-industrial complex is probably going to use the same play with their people."

I said, "President Eisenhower warned me about people like you."

Hannibal chuckled and slapped me on the shoulder. "Don't let it get you down. It's only money. Here, take the Minuteman missile cigarette lighter with you. Consider it a peace dividend from me."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round
By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON— When the Buffalo Creek dam burst last February, 21 million cubic feet of water, coal sludge and mud engulfed 16 West Virginia communities with a force greater than that of Niagara Falls.

At least 118 persons were drowned or crushed to death that rainy Saturday and some 5,000 others were made homeless. At first, rescue work was seriously impaired because roads were blocked and the weather grounded aircraft.

By next morning, skies had cleared enough for helicopters to begin rescue and evacuation work. Five large military rescue helicopters, all assigned to the West Virginia Air National Guard, swung into action.

Only two, however, were given the urgent task of bringing in fresh water and evacuating survivors. The other three were commandeered by Gov. Arch Moore to carry him and two plane-loads of bigwigs and newsmen to the scene.

The governor's arrival was carefully orchestrated. The press planes landed ahead of him so the TV crews could set up to film Moore as he stepped out to inspect the damage.

In fact, the press got two chances to photograph the governor arriving at the scene. First, the choppers set down at a coal company air strip above the site of the flood and later at a hospital in the nearby town of Man.

It is impossible to say whether any lives could have been saved had Moore not taken over the three rescue helicopters that day. But we have spoken to members of the rescue team who believe speedier assistance might have cut the death toll.

Several of the chopper pilots are known to have been extremely upset because, after they landed at Man, Moore went off—with the cameramen in tow—to tour the area by car. The helicopters were simply left to await his return.

By mid-afternoon, several pilots decided to begin making evacuation trips into the devastated valley on their own. They were able to complete a few missions before the governor returned to be ferried back to Charleston.

The nightly TV news that grim Sunday was filled with the films of Arch Moore strutting about the scene of the disaster, acting concerned.

Reached by my associate Brit Hume, Governor Moore insisted his party only consisted of essential personnel. The newsmen, he said, were an afterthought. He acknowledged, however, that his party included two bodyguards and his press secretary.

Most of the nation's laws no longer discriminate against children born out of wedlock. But those upholders of law and order, the FBI and the Defense Department, keep careful tabs on illegitimacy. A secret FBI file on a respected civil rights leader focuses on his illegitimate birth.

Small wonder, therefore, that the Defense Department also notes such facts in its security clearance investigations. One such file in our possession prominently records that the young serviceman was "Borned (sic) OUT of Wedlock."

Teen-agers are often accused by their grumping elders of spending more time with pot, pop records and parties than with serious studying. But two typical high school scientific projects sent in to us tell just the opposite story.

To show the effect of mercury pollution on living things, Cynde Hirschtick, a ninth-grader from Chicago, treated radish seeds with mercury. Even lightly bathed seeds failed to grow.

In Huntley, Minn., Mark Seetin, a high school senior, exposed fruit flies to color television in 1969 and found they suffered weird deformations. The determined Seetin, now in college, has kept up his experiments in hopes of warning those with older model TVs of radiation dangers and of forcing makers of newer models to do more research.

HARTKE'S HANDOUT
Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., and other friends of the railroads and big truckers on Capitol Hill are trying to sneak through a bill that could cost the taxpayers more than $5 billion.

Called the Surface Transportation Act of 1972, the legislation is so full of windfalls for the railroads, bus lines and truckers that Ralph Nader's transportation experts call it the worst such bill they have ever seen. It is now pending in Hartke's own Senate Transportation subcommittee.

Some industries which stand to profit heartily from the bill, including the freight forwarder, have helped out Hartke financially in the past. The Teamsters, who would benefit indirectly, also have been staunch Hartke allies.

Masterminding the lobbying on behalf of the Association of American Railroads is ex-Sen. George Smathers, D-Fla., who in his day was one of Congress's most talented persuaders.

The railroads have also called in former astronaut Wally Schirra to do broadcast commercials and thus give the lobbying further respectability.

The bill would set up a $5 billion fund under the Secretary of the Treasury. The money could then be loaned for 15 years at token interest. A single carrier, furthermore, could borrow as much as $750 million.

One of the many loopholes is in the definition of "loan." The "loans" could conceivably be written off as gifts. In any case, they would not have to be paid back until 15 years after completion of a project, thus allowing a clever company to delay repayment almost indefinitely.

The bill would also permit railroads to virtually dictate which routes they want to abandon with only 45 days' notice. This could mean financial chaos to small businesses, rural communities and shippers.

Finally, Hartke has built a huge tax loophole into the measure. It would give the surface transportation industry about $120 million a year in tax credits and $20 million in a depreciation bonanza.

Hartke insists that he is offering the bill only to open up debate on it and not because he wants every clause enacted.

"Keep an eye on that one . . . !"

Touchdown

By William F. Buckley Jr.

I hope that Hanoi, which no doubt fondles every editorial and news story concerning American fatigue and hostility to the Vietnam enterprise, was tuned in Thursday night. It was when Mr. Nixon reiterated our determination to seek an "honorable" end to the Vietnam war that the applause was most intense.

It would seem small potatoes, one is tempted to reason, up against so imposing a backdrop. After all, hadn't President Nixon just returned from Warsaw, where he did the whole champagne bit, and has not Poland been satelized for years and years? Granted there was a flash of quite bitter disappointment some time after Yalta when the world suddenly realized that Stalin had squatted down on precisely that area of Europe the independence of which was the formal objective of the allied powers. But, after a while, what is there to do, except settle for what you can? Why couldn't a future president of the United States, touring in Asia, do the champagne bit in Saigon, capital of a southern province of communist Vietnam? Letting bygones-be bygones?

But Richard Nixon has apparently no such intention. "I emphasize to you once again that this administration has no higher goal than bringing the Vietnam war to an early and honorable end," he said, knowing no doubt that the word "honorable" would stick in the throat of the legions whose determination to discredit the Vietnam war has grown to the point of obsession. When Hubert Humphrey said in his television debate that if he were elected President he would cut off South Vietnam "flatly," he was expressing something more than the desire to bring back American fighting men (that is already agreed upon), something more than military husbandry (a couple of billion dollars here and there never got Senator Humphrey all that exercised).

Humphrey was expressing bitterness towards South Vietnam, and there is no doubt that that is in the air. The inflections harden, as you wander around the country, at the mention, for instance, of the name of President Thieu. Nobody ever accused Thieu of waging an aggressive war, or of engaging in systematic terrorism, but when his name is spoken, the icicles form. Not so, strangely, for the bloody General Giap.

What's eating us? We no longer have, even, the excuse of a third world war,

The Pennsylvania Story

'Performance Picture'

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG— The die has been all but cast insofar as Pennsylvania lawmakers are concerned; either they have "it" or they don't!

The "it" in question refers not to any esthetic attribute but rather to a record of sorts to which they may point in the upcoming fall campaign for return to their Senate or House seat.

This year all 203 House seats are up for filling along with half the fifty Senate seats.

The record of the incumbent lawmakers could be quite a drawing card—if he has established any at all during his legislative tenure; it's something for voters to bite into which the inexperienced opponent obviously cannot hope to offer.

What then constitutes this "performance picture"?

Actually there are several facets to be considered, broken down roughly into these categories: (1) attendance—has he been poor, fair or excellent in attending legislative sessions, (2) how has he voted on statewide or betterment-of-the-state-as-a-whole issues, in relation to his own personal, local constituency, (3) how has he stacked up effectively arguing for or against issues that would affect his area in particular, and (4) how active has he been in working with his local constituency on non-legislative problems?

The answer to these points already have been pretty well decided by now insofar as the local lawmaker's record is concerned.

The 1971-72 general session basically holds the key to any legislative greatness that may have attained during their two-year tenure.

which was a favorite anti-Vietnam hobgoblin for years. The predictions of the American military, and of Presidents Johnson and Nixon, have proved pretty shaky, as regards the successful military conclusion of the war and the success of Vietnamization. But the sibylline utterances of the other side have proved preposterous.

On one point we should be agreed, namely that the aggression against South Vietnam would have petered out months even years ago if we had laid down a blockade at the time the military imperative crystallized. I mean back in 1965. But they were saying then that to do so would trigger a war with China. So seven years later we laid the blockade, and a war with China was not triggered. They told us that we risked a face-to-face collision with the Soviet Union if we implemented our blockade, and a war with China was not triggered. They told us that we risked a face-to-face collision with the Soviet Union if we implemented our blockade. The only collision that resulted was between Russian and American champagne glasses in the Kremlin.

They were as wrong in their optimism as in their pessimism. If we would stop the bombing, the North Vietnamese would go to the conference table. If we would yield on the shape of the table, they would prove conciliatory. If we sat down and bargained, they would prove malleable. The reasoning that took us from American softness to North Vietnamese reasonableness collapsed in a soritical heap; but the critics never looked back, never seemed to wonder why the Cambodian incursion didn't lead to Chinese intervention or nuclear war, why the Laos invasion didn't lead to either, on the contrary appear in retrospect to have been a preamble to the Spirit of Peking. There is very little left for the hysterical critics to do except to join the commune down in the fever swamps, where they call boozily for the impeachment of Richard Nixon in a center spread ad in the New York Times, a kook professor or two from Princeton and Harvard, old hands at fellow-travelling; two or three mindless Congressmen, and the Medici of American pro-Communism, Corliss Lamont.

And, after all that, Richard Nixon still gets a great ovation from Congress when he reiterates our determination not to ditch Vietnam. Never mind for a minute all the other things. By God, I was proud of Richard Nixon Thursday night.

Congress May Act On D.C.

By Martha Gottron

Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON— Supporters of home rule for the District of Columbia will try once again to get a bill through the House of Representatives, where they have lost six battles in the past 23 years. This time they think there's a chance of winning.

The first skirmish is scheduled for a June 5 meeting of the House District Committee headed by South Carolina Democrat John L. McMillan, a home rule opponent. McMillan has shown no inclination to bring the issue to a vote, but a committee majority could override his opposition.

"If everyone were present and voting, it's one vote either way," an aide to Democratic Rep. Abner J. Mikva of Illinois told Congressional Quarterly. Mikva supports home rule.

Committee Divided

By most counts, 12 committee members support home rule, another 12 oppose it and one is undecided. The swing vote could be Democratic Rep. W.S. (Bill) Stuckey of Georgia, who isn't saying what he'll do.

"If we pass home rule, the very next day they are going to want statehood," Stuckey said. The Georgian hinted he might be among several committee members who would rather make Washington the 51st state than give it home rule. "That (statehood) is true representation," Stuckey said.

One home rule opponent, Democratic Rep. John Dowdy of Texas, may not vote at all. In December 1971, Dowdy was convicted of bribery, conspiracy and perjury. The House is considering a resolution which, in effect, asks Dowdy to refrain from participating in committee business or House votes.

Race Issue

Home rule for the District has been an issue since Congress began governing the city in 1874. Supporters argue that the nation's capital should be a showplace of democracy and that Congress should not have to concern itself with such nagging problems as the cost of dog licenses. Opponents contend that home rule would conflict with the concept of a federal city and that fiscal matters between the city and the federal government would be confused.

But underlying these arguments is the issue of race. About 71 per cent of Washington's 757,000 residents are black. The probability that most elected officials would be black, while seldom discussed openly, has been at the heart of most opposition.

Democratic Rep. John R. Rarick of Louisiana stirred emotions in February when he described the residents of the District as "transients and migrants." Testifying on home rule before the committee, Rarick suggested that Washington citizens be resettled "in areas like Montana, South Dakota, Minnesota or Kansas."

Republican Rep. Gilbert Gude, who represents the District's Maryland suburbs, put the race issue squarely on the line. "The question is whether the white majority of this country and the Congress has the grace to grant basic rights to the capital city, which has a black majority," he said.

Compromise Possible

The bill home rule backers hope to report out of committee calls for an elected mayor and 11-member city council. Congress could veto any council action within 30 days. The Senate passed this bill in 1971.

If home rule advocates fail to win approval of their bill, they may consider a compromise bill offered by Republican Rep. Joel T. Broyhill of the Virginia suburbs. The Broyhill bill provides for a nine-member city council with three members elected, three appointed by Congress and three appointed by the President. One of the elected members would be the mayor.

Once a bill clears the committee, the key to success in the House is strong support from President Nixon, home rule supporters say. A White House spokesman said in April the President favors "the maximum degree of self-determination attainable."

Commission Report

A special commission headed by Republican Rep. Ancher Nelsen of Minnesota hopes to publish by July 1 a report on the efficiency of the District government. Nelsen says the report will not recommend but will point toward home rule.

No matter what happens with home rule, the real issue in coming years is likely to be statehood. Democratic Rep. Ronald V. Dellums of California has introduced a bill that would make most of the city a state except for a small federal enclave containing the White House, the capitol and several federal offices.

Hurdler Gittins Shooting For Spot On Olympic Team

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Intermediate hurdler Boyd Gittins, who has survived a series of mishaps, is wondering if lady luck still will be dogging his footsteps in a bid for the 1972 United States Olympic track and field team.

The former Washington State University runner, in training here after a tour of military duty in Vietnam, hit the final hurdle in a meet last month at Bakersfield, Calif., and placed second to world record holder Ralph Mann.

Back in 1969, Gittins broke a bone in his foot on the first hurdle, and limped home fifth in the national Collegiate Athletic Association championships. The night before he had been stricken by food poisoning.

"I didn't really think of quitting," Gittins said recently of the injury, "but the foot just kept getting more and more numb, and by the end was just like a flat tire."

Gittins' running career has been plagued with problems. He wanted to compete in the 440-yard dash in high school but failed to make the team. He decided to try for the mile the next year, but his coach at the suburban Seattle high school needed a hurdler, and Boyd was willing.

He was state junior college champion in both the low and high hurdles for two years before transferring to Washington State.

Gittins was second in the 1968 NCAA championships and went to the Amateur Athletic Union meet to qualify for the Olympic trials. It was there that a flying bird helped dislodge one of his contact lenses, and he groped his way to a fifth place finish.

Gittins qualified in a consolation race, but didn't run in the Mexico City Olympics because of a pulled hamstring.

This year?

"I guess my goal is to make the games again," said Gittins, who missed major competition for nearly three years, "but if I don't it's no tragedy. I won't quit."

"Look the Olympics aren't the only reason I'm back. I'm back because I like track and want to master this event."

"If I had run at Mexico and won a medal, well maybe that would have made it different. But I can't know that."

"What happened in Mexico was too bad, but I wouldn't say it's the thing motivating me. I don't worry about it."

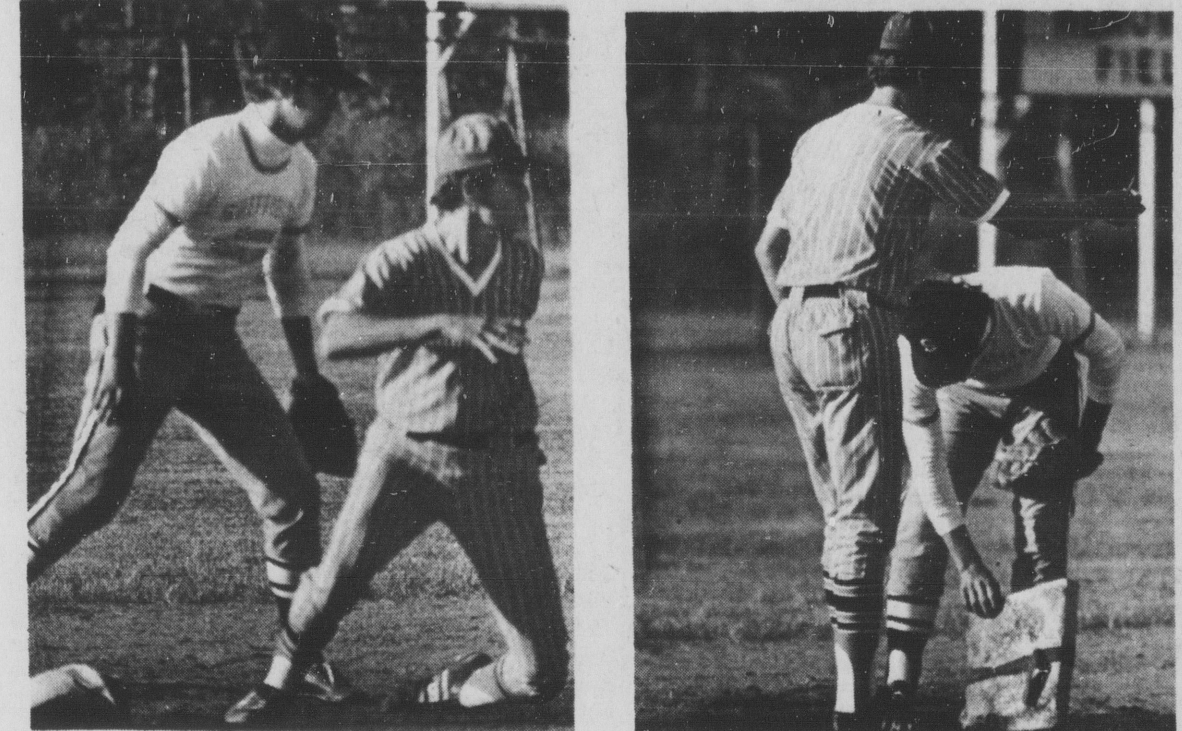

Gittins is concentrating on a new style.

"I guess I'd like to go 13 steps for five or six hurdles, then 14 the rest of the way," he said. "Not many guys have mastered 14 and maybe I won't either. But the old way, going 13, then cutting to 15 just wasn't that good for me. I have too great a stride."

"The main difference, though, is that I have an open mind on it. I used to be too strong-headed. Like, decide at the start that I'd go for 13 and then cut down—and then I'd run into a wind on the backstretch. I'd stick to my plan in spite of the wind and it would ruin my race."

Sixth Straight Win For 7-Percenter

Try-M Continues Unbeaten Ways

Pennsylvania Bank & Trust doesn't play Try-M Finance until July 5. But when the two giants of the Western Division meet, it should be a spectacular.

Monday evening the 7-Percenter extended their unbeaten streak when they, by the process of attrition, took care of PaulMar, 5-2. Elsewhere in the league, Sheffield's Boosters remained glued to second place in the West by stinging Chimenti's Restaurant in extra innings, 4-3. Penn Glade collected six first-inning runs to blitz Cole's Motel, 9-1. And in a game played on Sunday and not reported until yesterday, PaulMar's licked the Mini-Mart, 6-4.

Down 1-0 in the top of the fourth inning, Try-M scored its first run of the game on a base hit by Ron Caldwell. The second run came across in that inning when Bob Lord lifted a sacrifice fly. Stubborn and persistent, the Brewers scored their second run of the night in the fourth to tie the game up at 2-2.

The usually air-tight Try-M defense had sprung a leak and left Eli Fehlman to pitch his way out of a few jams. Fehlman was at his best, though, dealing the Brewers just three hits through seven frames.

Hitting support came his way in the fifth when Bob Larson knocked in the decisive run. And in the seventh, errors befell the Brewers to permit another pair of Try-M runners to touch home.

Ted Heckathorne suffered the loss.

In Sunday's game, the Brewers were trailing by a pair—2-0—when Layton Swanson led off the third inning with a single. Curt Brew replaced Swanson on first on an ensuing fielder's choice. Lou Vizza's subsequent single brought the Brewers to within one run, and Lee Sondericker's four-bagger pushed the PaulMar nine in front, 3-2.

Mini-Mart tied up the game in the fourth, but a two-run fifth for PaulMar's and another tally in the sixth was too much for the Grocers to retaliate against.

Ed Grove suffered the loss, while Sondericker picked up the victory in scattering seven hits. With two Chimenti runs scoring in the opening frames, a Sheffield loss appeared imminent. Unexpectedly, the Orangemen's defense came unglued. Mark Zevotek reached second safely on shortstop Dale Edwards' error. Rick Anders doubled and the first unearned run of the inning scooted home.

Anders went into third on a passed ball and scored when Jack Barnes mishandled a play at third.

Ken Goldthwaite was stationed on first when Terry Bross laid down a sacrifice bunt. Tim Persing then capped the eruption with a run-scoring single.

When the dust had settled, it was learned that three unearned runs had crossed the dish, and the Orangemen were down by one, 3-2. John Herzog answered pitcher Ralph Lee's call for support in the last half of the third inning with a solo home.

That's the way the game remained—3-3—until the top of the eighth. It was then that Larry Persing led off with a single, advanced to second on Lee Goldthwaite's sacrifice bunt, and came vrooming home on Joby McAulay's base hit.

Goldthwaite picked up the victory, his third, and the Boosters gathered in their fifth game on the plus side in six decisions.

Lee Munch, making his first start this year for the Penn Glade Restaurateurs, was mystifying for Cole's Innkeepers, holding them to just two hits in the seven-inning fray.

Penn Glade's big first inning started when Craig Caldwell singled and went to second on Dick Chapel's single. On Bill Humbert's single, Caldwell and Chapel both scored. An error, John Berdine's single and Mark English's single produced the fourth run. Berdine raced home with the fifth run on a passed ball. English eventually came home on a single.

Campaneris' Home Run Saddles Indians, 3-2

CLEVELAND (AP) — Bert Campaneris slammed a two-out home run in the 10th inning Monday night to power Oakland to its fourth straight victory as the A's beat the Cleveland Indians 3-2.

Campaneris' homer off Cleveland starter Gaylord Perry, 9-4, saddled the Indians with their 10th loss in 12 games and extended Oakland's lead over Chicago in the American League West to four games.

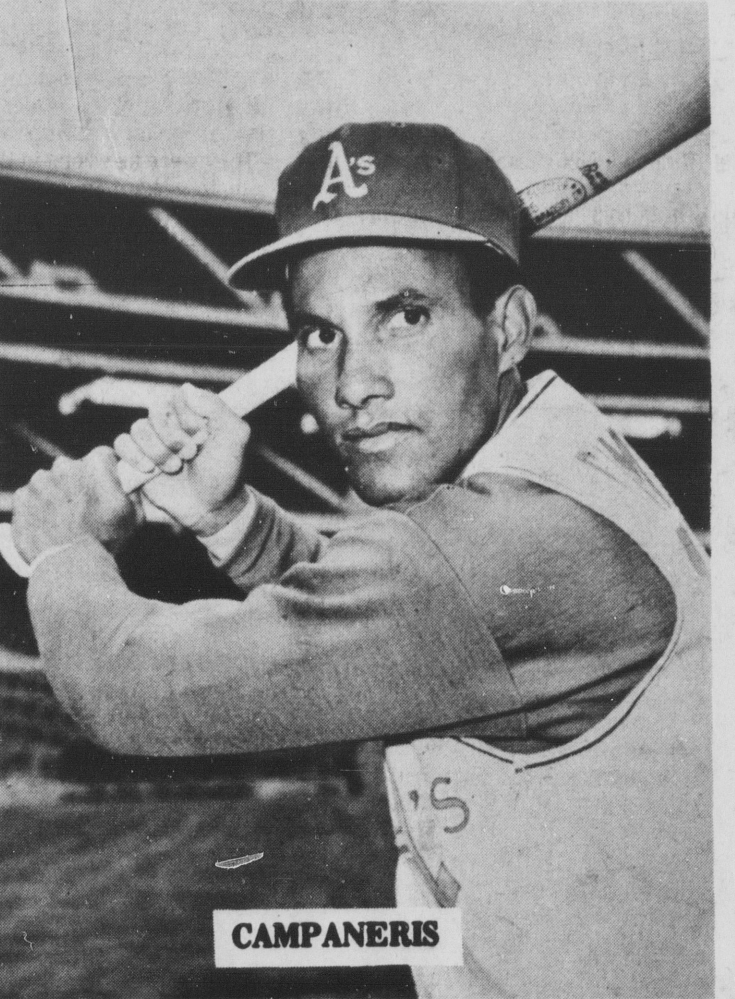

The A's jumped to a 2-0 lead in the third inning as pitcher John "Blue Moon" Odom singled and, two outs later, Reggie Jackson clubbed his 11th home run of the year.

Slammin' Sammy Fails To Qualify For US Open

By Associated Press
Slammin' Sammy Snead, who has won just about every major golf tournament in his long, illustrious career—with the exception of the U.S. Open—failed in his bid to qualify Monday for this year's Open, to be played at Pebble Beach, Calif. June 15-18.

Shooting what he described as "the worst round I've ever played," the 60-year-old Snead carded a 78 in the afternoon after a morning 69 in sectional qualifying at the Charlotte, N.C., Country Club. His 147 total missed qualifying by two strokes.

Doug Sanders, winner of the Kemper Open on the pro tour last weekend, topped the list of 30 qualifiers at Charlotte with a 68-67-135. Other top qualifiers were Hubert Green at 136, Don Bies and Rod Fenseth at 138 and Lou Graham at 140.

Among the other tour regulars to qualify at Charlotte were Kermit Zarley, Dave Marr, Bob Murphy, Bob Lunn, Mason Rudolph, Dave Hill, Charles Sifford, Jim Jamieson, Bruce Devlin and Gibby Gilbert. Amateur Eddie Pearce, of Temple Terrace, Fla., and Wake Forest University also qualified.

After his fine, two-under-par morning effort over the 6,729-yard, par-71 Charlotte Country Club course, Snead faltered on the front nine of his second round. He carded five bogeys and just one birdie for a 40 on the front nine.

But even with that, he would still have qualified had he been able to match par on the back nine. Instead, he bogeyed the 17th, then double-bogeyed the par four, 423-yard 18th.

Among the other prominent names to fail in qualifying efforts at Charlotte were Phil Rodgers, Herb Hooper, Lionel Hebert and Bruce Fleisher.

Elsewhere in sectional qualifying, Dallas pro Ras Allen shot an eight-under-par 134 to top qualifiers at the Dallas Athletic Country Club.

Allen had a 69 in his first round, then came back with a sparkling 65 in the afternoon. On his second round he had a double-eagle on the par 5, 509-yard first hole, sinking a 230-yard three iron shot.

Among the other qualifiers at Dallas were two University of Texas golfers, Tom Kite and Ben Crenshaw. Non-qualifiers included two name pros, John Schlee and Jack Burke.

Pirates Rained Out

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Rain forced postponement of Monday night's scheduled baseball game between the Pittsburgh Pirates and the San Diego Padres. A Padres spokesman said the game, first of a four-game series, would be played Wednesday night as part of a two-night doubleheader.

Twins Edge Baltimore On Darwin's RBI Single

BALTIMORE (AP) — Bob Darwin, who singled to launch a two-run Minnesota rally in the fourth inning, doubled home the tie-breaking run in the sixth as the Twins edged the slumping Baltimore Orioles 3-2 Monday night.

The winning hit scored Harmon Killebrew, who had reached second when Dave Johnson fielded his leadoff infield hit and threw wildly past first base.

Minnesota's other runs off loser Dave McNally, 5-5, came on singles by Darwin and Steven Brye and a two-run double by Eric Soderholm.

The Orioles managed just five hits off Dick Woodson, 4-3, and reliever Wayne Granger.

The Orioles scored in the third when Mark Belanger beat out a bunt and moved around on a stolen base, an infield out and another safe bunt by Johnny Oates.

Surprises On NHL Draft Lists

MONTREAL (AP) — Several surprise names were available to the New York Islanders and Atlanta Flames in Tuesday's National Hockey League expansion draft.

General Managers Bill Torrey of the Islanders and Cliff Fletcher of the Flames were supplied with the protected lists of the 14 established NHL clubs Monday evening, some 17 hours before they were to make their selections.

Boston's Stanley Cup champions left three veterans, forwards Johnny McKenzie and Ted Westfall and defenseman Ed Green, up for grabs.

Chicago did not protect forwards Bryan Campbell, Andre Lacroix, Lou Angotti and Eric Nesterenko, and Los Angeles' eligibles included veterans Bob Pulford, mentioned prominently as the Kings' next coach, and Harry Howell.

Also available were California's Wayne Carleton, Glen Sather of New York, Eddie Shack and Ken Schinkel of Pittsburgh, Bill MacMillan of Toronto and Dale Hoganson of Montreal.

In the goalie draft, the new teams can pick from such familiar names as Denis DeJordy and Phil Myre of Montreal, Gerry Desjardins of Chicago and Pittsburgh's Les Binkley. Two promising young goalies, Minnesota's Gilles Gilbert and Dan Bouchard of Boston, were also up for grabs with the North Stars and Bruins electing to protect veterans instead.

According to the rules of the draft, no team can lose more than three players including a goalie. Each club may add a player to its protected list whenever it loses one.

TWO POINT OPTION

NEW YORK—Back in the days when the National Football League and George Halas were younger and more venturesome, revolutionary rules changes were offered by the imaginative George Preston Marshall of the Redskins. This was exactly 40 years ago and it was to be a breakaway from the college rules the professionals had followed much too slavishly.

"Gentlemen," said Marshall to his fellow owners, "it's time we realized that we're not only in the football business. We're also in the entertainment business. If the colleges want to louse up their game with bad rules, we don't have to follow suit. The hell with the colleges. We should do what's best for us. We should adopt rules that give us a spectacular individuality and national significance. Here's what I propose."

He offered five changes: 1. Restoring the goalposts to the goal line; 2. Permitting forward passing from anywhere behind the line of scrimmage; 3. Spotting the ball in 15 yards from the sidelines; 4. Relaxing the strictures on substitution; 5. Permitting free communication between coach and quarterback.

The only reason Marshall jammed through all his legislative proposals was because he had the enthusiastic endorsement of Halas, still the owner and coach of the Chicago Bears although he had recently retired as captain and roughneck right end as well. The Papa Bear was then the most dynamic force in the league and his influence was great. Apparently it still is. The rebel of 40 years ago is now a 77-year-old conservative whose philosophy is: why risk spoiling a good game?

When the N.F.L. owners held their winter meetings in Honolulu a couple of months ago, they brushed aside radical rules changes such as sudden death to eliminate ties, the two-point conversion, reassessment of field goal values and lesser items. All such action—or inaction—was reaffirmed a fortnight ago in another get-together in New York.

The only things to emerge from the Hawaii meetings were punters and the decision to move the hash marks three and a half yards farther in from the sidelines. This produced the caustic crack from Jerry Magee that they travelled 3,000 miles to move hash marks three and a half yards.

Because a probing study into sudden death and into the field goal situation had revealed unsuspected flaws, these rules were pushed to the back of the burner and let cool. The chill also is on the two-point conversion even though there is nothing new about that attitude. It is a holdover from the days when the lordly N.F.L. owners sneered at the then struggling American Football League and classified everything about it as bush league. The A.F.L. even had the two-point option just like the colleges. And all true professionals regard the colleges as bush. The option, of course, involved granting a point for a kick but two points for crossing the goal line by rush or pass from the 2-yard line.

But old-time animosities have faded now that the warring leagues have become one big happy family under the paternal guidance of Pete Rozelle. About half the owners are now willing to favor the two-point conversion and that's a considerable increase even if a three-quarter vote is necessary for adoption. Once unalterably opposed to it, I now find myself on the side of the two-pointers.

The proficiency of the placement kickers increases year after year. Thirty years ago the converters of extra points clicked with 89.6 per cent of their kicks. Last season it was up to 97.5. It has been so automatic as to serve as the safe time to go to the refrigerator for the sponsor's brew or to go elsewhere on more urgent business.

But if there is a two-point option available, the element of suspense suddenly bobs up. Strangely enough, though, it never did bob up as often in the old A.F.L. as most people think it did. Coaches were so cautious that they usually chickened out, taking the sure one-pointer rather than gambling on the riskier two-point.

The statistics are most illuminating. In the 10-year history of the A.F.L. a total of 3,190 touchdowns were scored, each with an option attached. How often did those brave coaches order a try for the two-pointer? They attempted only 157 and that's less than half of 1 per cent. They clicked on 85.

The percentage of success seems unduly high even if it failed to encourage many to try the two-pointers more frequently. Mel Durslag, the Los Angeles historian, did some research on the laws of probabilities in scoring from point-blank range. His findings revealed that pro teams score from inside the 5-yard line only once in seven attempts.

Maybe no noticeable change in strategy would follow the adoption of the two-point option. But the mere fact that it would be available would add a new and tantalizing element to what has become a deadly dull procedure. It even would give a new dimension to the second guess when the Grandstand Quarterbacks, who don't have to worry about their jobs, shout advice to the coaches who do. The N.F.L. purists should begin to realize that not everything invented by the old A.F.L. or by the colleges is necessarily bad.

Joachim Leaving Penn State Camp

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP)—Steve Joachim, considered by no less an authority than Coach Joe Paterno as the top sophomore quarterback ever to play for Penn State, has decided to play his junior and senior seasons somewhere else. "I have to find a place where they throw the ball," Joachim said.

He indicated he was leaning toward Temple, near his hometown of Haverford, Pa., which is making a big push for the big-time under Wayne Hardin, the ex-Navy coach, and where he would be reunited with tight end Randy Grossman, his favorite high school receiver.

Georgia Tech is also a possibility, said Joachim. He said he would not make his decision until after the end of Penn State's spring team June 15, but said he definitely had decided to leave.

"There are no hard feelings," said Joachim, who was heavily recruited after he threw 62 touchdown passes at Haverford High School, but was strictly a backup man last season as a Penn State sophomore. "I just think it's best for me."

Joachim conceded that John Hugnagel, Penn State's No. 1 quarterback and a fraternity brother, "does the things that we've been doing better than I do."

Joachim completed 16 of 41 passes for 399 yards and seven touchdowns last season as Penn State's No. 2 QB.

A Charming Slugger

Dick Allen has pumped new life into the Chicago White Sox this season with his explosive bat, and is presently leading the league in runs batted in. Allen, according to reports, has also managed to charm the news media, which is a radical departure from his former antics.

Allen's Bat Revitalizing White Sox And Turnstiles

CHICAGO (AP)—The mighty swing of Dick Allen's bat, along with a hot home surge, may be fanning the Chicago White Sox into their first climb over the one-million attendance mark since 1965.

The sixth largest paid crowd in Chicago baseball history, 51,904, watched the White Sox trim the New York Yankees 6-1, 5-4 Sunday. Allen's dramatic, ninth-inning, three-run pinch homer won the nightcap.

That boosted the White Sox' home record to 19-3 and their home attendance for 20 dates to 331,948, compared with 195,486 for the same period last year.

Allen, American League leader in runs batted in with 37, has baffled, intrigued and now awed the White Sox since he signed for a reported $135,000 last April 1.

The former troubled star of the Philadelphia Phils, St. Louis Cardinals and Los Angeles Dodgers missed the entire spring training period. He came to terms just as the player strike derailed the start of the 1972 season.

But since then, everything Allen has done for the White Sox has been with class and clout. He has been charming with the news media and is the club leader for a surprising team which is second in the American League West with a 25-17 record.

Until Sunday's second game Allen had played every inning of the team's first 41 games. Then, Chicago Manager Chuck Tanner elected to rest him.

When Allen's name failed to appear in the second game starting lineup, Chicago owner John Allyn alarmingly asked why.

Tanner replied, "I'm just going to rest him. I'll use him when we get the bases loaded. He'll hit a homer and win it for us."

The bases weren't exactly loaded—Bill Melton had walked and Mike Andrews singled—when Tanner sent Allen in to pinch-hit. In a rare pinch-hitter role, Allen blasted a 1-1 pitch by Sparky Lyle for his game-winning homer.

"Allen hits the ball harder than anybody I've ever seen, and consistently," said Andrews. "He can make you feel very weak, just watching him. I can't even handle his 40-ounce bat and he swings it like a 30-ouncer."

Hen Pheasants Added To State's Game List

Pennsylvania hunters will have their first chance ever to hunt hen pheasants this year in a limited portion of the state.

For the first time since 1915 they will be able to harvest two wild turkeys during a single hunting license year, one in the fall and a second in the spring.

And season limits for most small game species will give way to possession limits in 1972.

These are among major changes made by the Game Commission in establishing 1972-73 hunting seasons and bag limits.

This year's regular four-week archery deer season will open on Saturday, Sept. 30; the two-week early small game season will start on Saturday, Oct. 14; and the four-week general small game season will begin on Saturday, Oct. 28.

In another break with tradition, the Game Commission has established a tentative season for bears on Nov. 20 and 21. If data collected and analyzed this summer show that a bruin season might cut into the basic breeding stock, the season may be cancelled. A decision will be announced before Labor Day.

The two-week antlered deer season will open on Monday, Nov. 27; a two-day antlerless deer season will be held on Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 11 and 12; and the winter small game and archery deer seasons will begin on Dec. 26 and close on Jan. 13.

Several other changes were also made from the 1971-72 seasonal setup.

Antlerless deer license allocations for the state were lowered, the closed portion of the state during the winter archery deer season was eliminated, the mink and muskrat trapping season was shortened, and an extra hour was added to the daily hunting schedule during the spring gobble season.

Most of the upper one-third of Pennsylvania does not have self-sustaining pheasant populations. For years only male pheasants have been stocked in portions of 21 northern counties. By liberating hens in this area and making them legal game, an economic saving in game farm operations can be realized.

It is apparent that season limits on small game species are virtually unenforceable, and that hunters use these limits as goals. So the Game Commission established possession limits for small game, with the exception of turkeys and hares. Small game possession limits will be double the daily limit.

Although Pennsylvania's deer herd is growing dangerously large again in some areas, the number of antlerless licenses allocated was reduced in 1972. Since more than one antlerless license could be issued to a hunter in the past, while there will be only one to a hunter this year, the number of deer harvested should be relatively comparable in 1971 and 1972.

By law, the Commission now can open or close seasons or areas quickly, so the late archery season can be curtailed in any region should weather or other conditions warrant the action.

Last year there was an especially high harvest of muskrats, and to protect the basic breeding stock a shorter season was established, beginning on Thanksgiving Day.

Since the five spring hunting seasons held thus far have not been harmful to the turkey population, and since a number of gobblers did not respond to the calls of hunters until 9 a.m. or later this year, the Commission added an extra hour to the daily hunting schedule for bearded birds in the spring. The new closing time daily will be 11 a.m., with all hunters expected to be out of the woods by noon.

Sweep Worth $25,000

FORT ERIE, Ont. (AP)—Lee Trevino's sweep of the Canadian, United States and British Open golf championships in 1971 has earned him golf's first Triple Crown award.

The popular Mexican-American became the first winner of the award, inaugurated for his accomplishment by the sponsors of the Canadian Open, Peter Jackson cigarettes.

The award, worth $25,000, was presented to Trevino Monday at the Cherry Hills Club, site of the 1972 Canadian Open July 6-9.

The presentation by made by L.E. Ricard, president of the sponsoring firm, who also announced a similar award will be offered annually as an incentive to professional golfers duplicating Trevino's feat.

Following the presentation, Trevino earmarked $5,000 of the prize money as an initial deposit to the Lee Trevino-University of Texas at El Paso Endowment Fund to provide financial aid to deserving young Canadian and American athletes attending the university.

The fund will be supplemented by donations from other sponsors.

"I almost won this much yesterday," Trevino said. He finished one stroke behind Doug Sanders Sunday in the Kemper Open at Charlotte, N.C.

Notes & Quotes

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore Orioles were out in full force Monday for a practice session more typical of spring training than mid-season.

The early morning practice was unusual for the American League champions, but not for a team whose batting average is .219.

Manager Earl Weaver called the session Sunday after the Orioles were blanked twice by Oakland—the first double-header shutout suffered by the Orioles in the last 14 years.

"I just wanted to tell the boys that things aren't as bad as they may seem, that winning can really be a lot of fun and if they don't get it going, they're going to find losing can be a big pain said Weaver, author of the book 'Winning'."

NEW YORK (AP)—Commissioner Walter Kennedy of the National Basketball Association, reacted to queries about the rival American Basketball Association Monday with the attitude that the ABA was running its own business.

"... let me reiterate that I have no knowledge, other than that reported by the media, of any alleged action of the ABA in reducing the number of its franchises, in dissolving or in seeking to become part of the NBA as an extension of our expansion program," said Kennedy.

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pittsburgh Steeler's top draft choice, running back Franco Harris of Penn State, and his agent met Monday with club officials, but the two sides were unable to agree on a contract.

"Our conversation was very amicable and we are going to meet again soon," said Steeler vice president Dan Rooney. No date was set for a future meeting.

Last week, the world championship Ferrari 312s were withdrawn from the race by the factory, which said they were designed for the much shorter championship events and not for 24 hours.

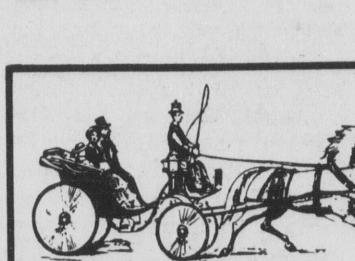

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Raiders of the fledgling World Hockey Association announced the signing of Mike Robitaille, a 24-year-old defenseman who has played briefly with three National Hockey League clubs.

NEW YORK (AP)—Roy Boe president of the New York Nets of the American Basketball Association, said Monday the league is considering five possible sites as new locations for the Pittsburgh and Miami locations.

The potential sites listed by Boe included Chicago, St. Louis, Anaheim, Connecticut and upstate New York.

The ABA holds its annual meeting here June 15-16. Any action on shifting the franchises is likely to come at that time.

NEW YORK (AP)—New York State Athletic Commission chairman Edwin B. Dooley announced Monday that the Commission has amended its rules to permit the licensing of women wrestlers to compete in exhibition matches in New York State with persons of the same sex.

Historic Tombstone Plaque Found

The plaque missing for several years from the tombstone of Matthew Young, notable county pioneer and founder of Youngsville, has been found. A photograph of the stone in the Youngsville I.O.O.F. cemetery appeared in last week's Brokenstraw News page.

Mrs. Joan Archbold, new owner of John's Jeweler's, Youngsville, made a special search when the question of the plaque's whereabouts came up. She found it among stored odds and ends, where it was apparently left and forgotten after being removed for restoration, probably at about the time of the Youngsville Sesquicentennial celebrations in 1963.

The plaque, apparently made of gilded copper, was so tarnished that most of its inscription was hardly visible, until cleaned by Frank Hendrickson, Youngsville borough council president, and secretary-treasurer of the Youngsville I.O.O.F. cemetery. However, the gilding has worn so thin that the copper shows through in several spots. The finely etched lettering needs a good light, to be read with any comfort. And there are impressions in the metal which suggest that the plaque has been used as a gun firing target. Mr. Hendrickson says the tombstone is similarly pitted.

The plaque appears to have been fastened to the tombstone with only one bolt, at top center. Mr. Hendrickson has already bought a new one—but before the plaque is replaced, some authoritative advice about restoration is being sought.

Mr. Hendrickson is also searching through old minute books and accounts of both the borough council and the cemetery association, to see if he can find any record of the original purchase transaction. Both agencies are named on the plaque. It proclaims:

Area Men Join Court Suit Claiming All-Women Abortion Board Discriminatory

Two area men are among 17 men who, claiming their constitutional rights are being denied, have asked Commonwealth Court in Harrisburg to halt further action by the state's all-women abortion commission.

Michael Chase of Clarendon and Theodore Proukou of Warren stated Monday that they had joined the other men, from all areas of the state, in the action. A hearing was scheduled for Friday. The men were represented by John G. Arch, a Pittsburgh lawyer.

The suit is based on a recent amendment to the state constitution which prohibits "abridgement of equality of rights because of sex."

"Getting the women's side of the story is fine but there are two sides to every story," said one of the plaintiffs, Paul Francis of Gibsonia.

Chase said that all of the plaintiffs' wives belong to Pennsylvanians for Human Life, a group opposing liberalized abortion laws in Pennsylvania. The all-woman commission held a meeting Monday in Harrisburg, and it was reported that the commission may adopt a report recommending liberalization of Pennsylvania's abortion law.

"We believe the commission is slanted in terms of its composition," said Chase. "And two-thirds of its members are pro-abortion," he said.

"I as an individual am opposed to a liberalized abortion law," said Chase. "However, our action is more designed at the constitutionality of the commission. The rights of men have been violated."

"I feel that abortion on demand is out of the question," said Proukou. "In a case where the mother's life is in danger, abortion is definitely feasible. But we must avoid the open sort of thing that New York State now has."

Chase said he is general chairman of the Warren chapter of Pennsylvanians for Human Life, and Proukou said he is a member of that organization's executive committee. Both men answered "yes" when asked if they would want to serve on the state abortion commission if asked.

The injunction would prevent the commission from holding meetings, Gov. Shapp from receiving reports from the women and Treasurer Grace Sloan from approving payments for the commission. The commission was created by Shapp in January to study the existing law and recommend changes to the governor.

Present law bans "illegal" abortions but doesn't define "illegal." It has been in force since 1860. Because of its vagueness, the law was declared unconstitutional by courts in Allegheny and Centre counties.

Other plaintiffs in the suit are John Ward, Richard P. Joseph and G. Anthony Jones of Pittsburgh; Thomas Vogel of Monroeville; Robert D. Blouse of Beallsville; Richard Stone of Allentown; Paul Tomkins and William Scarpitti of Erie; Robert King and Clyde Walton of Meadville; Paul M. Hemler of Camp Hill; Richard P. Davis of Jeannette and the Revs. Eli Keeny and David Saint Clair of Greensburg.

IN MEMORY
MATTHEW YOUNG
Founder of Youngsville
Scotchman by Birth
Settled in Youngsville in 1792
Died Aug. 4, 1825
Aged about 70 years
Remains removed from old burying ground by Council
Sept. 13, 1884
This Lot donated by I.O. of O.F. Cemetery.

It is not known whether the stone came with the remains from the old burying ground (which was on property now occupied by Saron Lutheran Church.) The likelihood is that it did.

Many other removals were made at the same time, and headstones predating 1884 mark them.

Matthew Young, Revolutionary War veteran, cleared the land, built the first inn (where he gave reading lessons) and a mill, sold lots in 1813 for the development of housing, and laid out streets and built the first one, for the town he was to call Youngsville. He is said to have carved the name "Youngval" on a large stone which was for many years used as the doorstep of a store in the town.

He became one of the wealthiest men in the county, active in public affairs, and the first county treasurer, when he moved to Warren to live.

Anybody with advice or suggestions concerning restoration of the plaque is invited to contact Mr. Frank Hendrickson, at 563-9948; or they may telephone 563-9796.

Borough Car Survey Held Up

Warren Borough's upcoming traffic survey, an integral part of the Action Plan development program, has been postponed.

The study which was scheduled to begin Monday, June 12, has been set back a week to June 19, according to Thomas G. Hessley, planning assistant.

The change in plans was necessitated last week when the coordinator of the study, a Mr. Nusser from Pittsburgh, suffered a heart attack. The study will be supervised by Donald M. McNeil, traffic engineer.

On the days of the study workmen will solicit information from motorists entering and leaving the heart of Warren Borough. That data will be used to determine what changes will be made in the downtown's traffic picture.

Veterans Honor Local Office For Job Effort

The Warren office of the Pennsylvania State Employment Service was honored recently by the Veterans of Foreign Wars for its outstanding record of placing unemployed veterans in new jobs.

Of the total male applicants placed in positions during 1971 by the Warren office, 71.7 per cent were veterans.

Local manager Andrew J. Donick has received a congratulatory memo from Bernard J. Williams, district manager of the eight Northwestern Pennsylvania Counties, which praises Donick and his staff for their consideration and dedication in finding meaningful job opportunities for veterans—particularly those of the Vietnam era.

Placement, counseling, testing, referral and job training, as well as other supportive services, are offered veterans by the State Employment Service.

Drug Charge vs. Waterford Man

LAWRENCE PARK — Ralph Lee Fucci Jr. of RD 1, Waterford, has been charged by state police at Lawrence Park with possession of marijuana.

The charges followed a raid on a party in Waterford Sunday, May 28 attended by about 150 youths, and raided by state police from Erie, Warren, Corry, Meadville and Girard. Fucci was arraigned before District Justice Anna McCall and released on $1,000 bail. State police said more arrests may be forthcoming as a result of the raid.

Cambodian Capital Hit By Rockets In Daylight

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Rockets blasted Phnom Penh Monday in the first daylight attacks on the Cambodian capital in nearly two years of war. Six persons were killed and 11 wounded.

The attacks came as ballots were being counted from the country's first presidential election, giving incumbent Lon Nol just under 60 per cent of the vote. His lead was less than predicted, and a dark-horse candidate campaigning for the return of deposed Prince Norodom Sihanouk received unexpectedly wide support.

A rocket attack on the Cambodian Defense Ministry killed 3 persons and wounded 10 others.

One rocket fell near Lon Nol's villa on the southwestern edge of town.

Another rocket exploded near the Soviet-built Friendship Hospital, but no damage was reported.

The Defense Ministry has been the target of repeated night rocket attacks in the past. But the missiles missed their mark and landed in nearby areas, causing civilian casualties.

Early unofficial returns from the balloting Sunday gave Marshal Lon Nol a smaller portion of the vote than had been predicted. It was the first presidential election since Sihanouk was deposed nearly two years ago and a republic under Lon Nol was established.

The official totals were not expected for several days but Lon Nol seemed assured of victory.

State's New Insurance Guide Sends Companies Into Dither

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The insurance industry generally disputes the value of Pennsylvania Insurance Commissioner Herbert Denenberg's shopper's guide to life insurance. But few argue its impact.

"The companies are now scrambling to get off the list," says Russell Wileman, executive director of the Pennsylvania Association of Life Underwriters.

"The insurers are looking at the guide very closely, and I'm sure there are going to be some changes, because this thing has gotten national exposure."

The guide, published in April, applies to straight life policies and shows the 10 lowest and 10 highest policies in cost among the 166 largest companies doing business in Pennsylvania and the cost rankings for the 50 largest life insurers in the state. The guide is reported receiving national distribution because life insurance rates, unlike health and auto insurance rates, are the same from state to state.

Those who object to the guide say that people will be concerned only about rankings and forget about other important considerations like trained agents to counsel policyholders and "follow-through service" after the policy is in force. They also complain that the rankings are based on arbitrary ages and face values, and that if different factors were used the rankings would change.

Some insurers are reported using the ratings to their advantage.

"Some of our competitors who rank better in the guide are using it to their advantage and our disadvantage," a Philadelphia official for Travelers Insurance—rated the ninth costliest company in the guide—told the Philadelphia Inquirer.

"But if you read the whole guide, Travelers comes off pretty well. We're just concerned that people will read the ranks on price and forget about all the other considerations."

Bankers Life Co. of Iowa, ranked No. 1 on the "least costly" list, has been advertising on radio and television, urging people to check the guide for the best buy.

Denenberg said earlier that the guide was not the final word in life insurance and that he hoped it would spur the insurance industry to put one out with more detail.

Requests for the guide continue to come in to the Insurance Department, Denenberg said.

The plan is to print about 150,000 copies.

Denenberg didn't dismiss life insurance with the publication of the guide. Supplements followed.

The 10 lowest-cost companies, in order, as they appear in the guide:

Bankers Life, Iowa; Home Life Insurance, New York; National Life Ins. Co., Vermont; Connecticut Mutual Life Ins. Co.; Phoenix Mutual Life; Northwest Mutual Life; Central Life Assurance, Iowa; State Mutual Life of America; Modern Woodmen, Lutheran Mutual Life.

Three of the 10 highest cost companies in the guide received the highest financial stability rating—Security Life and Accident, Travelers and Monumental Life Insurance. The other seven were listed as having "considerable" or "substantial" financial stability—one and two on the four-point scale.

The 10 highest cost companies listed in the Denenberg guide, in order:

Georgia International Life; State Life; Valley Forge Life; Employers Life of America; Old Republic Life; Pennsylvania Life; Puritan Life; Security Life and Accident; Travelers; Monumental Life.

State House Votes Stronger Anti-Pollution Role For State

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The House voted overwhelmingly Monday to expand the state's role in fighting air pollution by allowing it to prosecute local polluters in cases where municipal officials fail to take action.

The provision was included in an omnibus air pollution control bill that its sponsor, Rep. John F. Laudadio, D-Westmoreland, hailed as "the strongest and most effective air pollution measure in the nation."

The bill was approved 172-3 and sent on to the Senate, without debate. Besides strengthening the Commonwealth's role in local pollution situations, it would:

—Give the Department of Environmental Resources the authority to stop construction or installation of any potential air polluting device until granting a permit.

—Allow the state Environmental Quality Board to intervene in situations where particular weather conditions cause an accumulation of air pollutants in certain geographic areas.

—Abolish regional Air Pollution Control Associations transferring their duties and functions to the state Environmental Hearing Board.

—Provide penalties of from $100 to $1,000 for a first offense and $500 to $5,000 — plus up to one year in jail — for subsequent violation within two years. Continuing pollution for a period of days could result in prosecution for separate offenses, for each day the pollution continued.

Postal Board Cuts Proposed Rate Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Rate Commission Monday recommended a 5.5 per cent reduction in proposed postage increases. The changes would leave the rates paid now by the average mailer at about the same.

The recommended $78.3-million reduction would not affect first-class or air-mail letters, which cost 8 cents and 11 cents respectively.

The commission urged that post cards be mailed for the current rate of 6 cents each, a 1-cent reduction from the U.S. Postal Service's requested 7-cent rate. It estimated this would save the mailing public $25 million each year.

The commission urged also a cut in the proposed per-piece rate for second-class mail, primarily magazines and newspapers. Currently such publishers pay two-tenths of one cent per publication mailed in addition to the regular weight rate.

The Postal Service had proposed raising this rate to 1.9 cents per piece. The commission asked that this rate be cut back to 1.6 cents.

The commission estimated that the cut would save publishers about $21.8 million per year. But in New York, Andrew Heiskell, chairman of the Board of Time, Inc., said the second-class increases proposed by the commission still are 127 per cent above previous levels.

Judge Orders U.S. Steel Halt Air Pollution

PITTSBURGH (AP) — An Allegheny County judge ruled Monday that U.S. Steel cannot pollute the air while appealing actions by the county Air Pollution Control Board to the courts.

The ruling by Judge Silvestri Silvestri came on a motion by the giant steelmaker to dismiss a state and county request for a court order forcing the company to immediately cut pollution from its Clairton Coke Works.

U.S. Steel had claimed that an injunction was not necessary because adequate remedies to halt pollution are supplied by law.

"To await the outcome of various proceedings that probably will be appealed to Commonwealth Court and the Supreme Court ... while 250 tons of contaminants are being spewed into the air daily," the judge said, could result in harm to the public.

U.S. Steel had been seeking a variance from pollution regulations for its Clairton Coke Works since 1970. The variance has been denied by the county pollution control board, but the company is appealing the ruling to Common Pleas Court.

Ford To Delay '73 Autos

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. announced Monday that because of stringent government antipollution regulations the company will delay the start-up production dates for its 1973 models.

In a joint statement issued in Detroit, Board Chairman Henry Ford II and President Lee Iacocca said the firm was extending its production period for 1973 models in North America.

"We have added 40,000 cars and 65,000 trucks to our 1972 schedule which will enable us to keep our employees at work building vehicles that our dealers can sell," they said.

"Accordingly, some 1973 model start-up production dates have been delayed. These changes, it is hoped, also will give us enough time to obtain limited certification and begin 1973 production to meet newly established dealer introduction dates."

Ford said that its introduction dates for 1973 model cars would be delayed one week and its 1973 trucks by two weeks.

Elevator Plan At Rouse OKed

Commissioner James Marshall, chairman of the Rouse Estate, said Monday that plans for the proposed elevator installation at the Rouse Home have been approved by the Dept. of Labor and Industry.

"This means, Marshall added, that the installation will be put out for bids, probably the first of next week.

Marshall also briefly discussed new and less stringent regulations put forth by the Dept. of Labor and Industry in regard to sprinkler systems and smoke detectors. Architect Jeremy Fisher is presently reviewing present and proposed installations at the Rouse Home to determine exactly how the new regulations will affect that facility.

Pipeline Crew Starts Clean-Up Of Second Oil Spill This Spring

A National Transit Co. crew of seven worked all day Monday cleaning the shoreline of the Allegheny Reservoir and the various tributaries effected by a Coon Run oil spill discovered late last week.

Kinzua Dam superintendent Jack Ewers said Monday afternoon the whole clean-up process will take approximately three days.

He said the flow, which originated from a leak in an oil line well up Coon Run was first reported Friday. Escaping oil had spread, by that time, to the Chapel Fork inlet of the reservoir and subsequently into the reservoir itself.

The spill is the second of recent weeks on the reservoir. Another National Transit line broke last month into the Kinzua Creek arm of the reservoir.

Oil Slick

Quantities of loose oil could be seen all along Coon Run Friday afternoon, clouding the water with a thin sheen. Fish Biologist Tom Groutage said this pocket of oil exemplified the problem workmen are still trying to correct.

Don Birge, Bradford district forester, points to a "sleeve" workmen placed over a leak in a National Transit Co. line on Coon Run Friday. The spill, reportedly discovered by a fisherman, actually reached the Allegheny Reservoir.

State Studying Monopoly Of Liquor, Wine Sales

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—Should the state monopolize the sale of liquor and wine? That's the nature of a feasibility study ordered by Gov. Milton Shapp, who thinks wines at least should be retailed by private business.

The consultant, Sol E. Zubrow of Philadelphia said Monday

he's been working on the project for six to eight weeks and expects to be finished in three weeks.

Zubrow said the purpose of the study is to see what options open to the state would be the most profitable—continuing the monopoly system, turning all liquor sales over to private dealers or adopting a system that falls between those two extremes like allowing the sale of wine outside state stores.

Blood Donors Hit High Levels

Eight county residents became gallon or multi-gallon donors May 22 when they visited the bloodmobile in Warren. Joining the list of five-gallon donors were Frank Molinaro of Warren and Melvin M. Riggie of Clarendon.

James Palmer Jr., and Leo S. Turner, both of Warren, became four-gallon donors and Mrs. Doris Kellogg joined the two-gallon donor list. Roy M. Lindell of Russell and Paul F. Moore and Dr. Anthony Nicotera, both of Warren, became one-gallon donors.

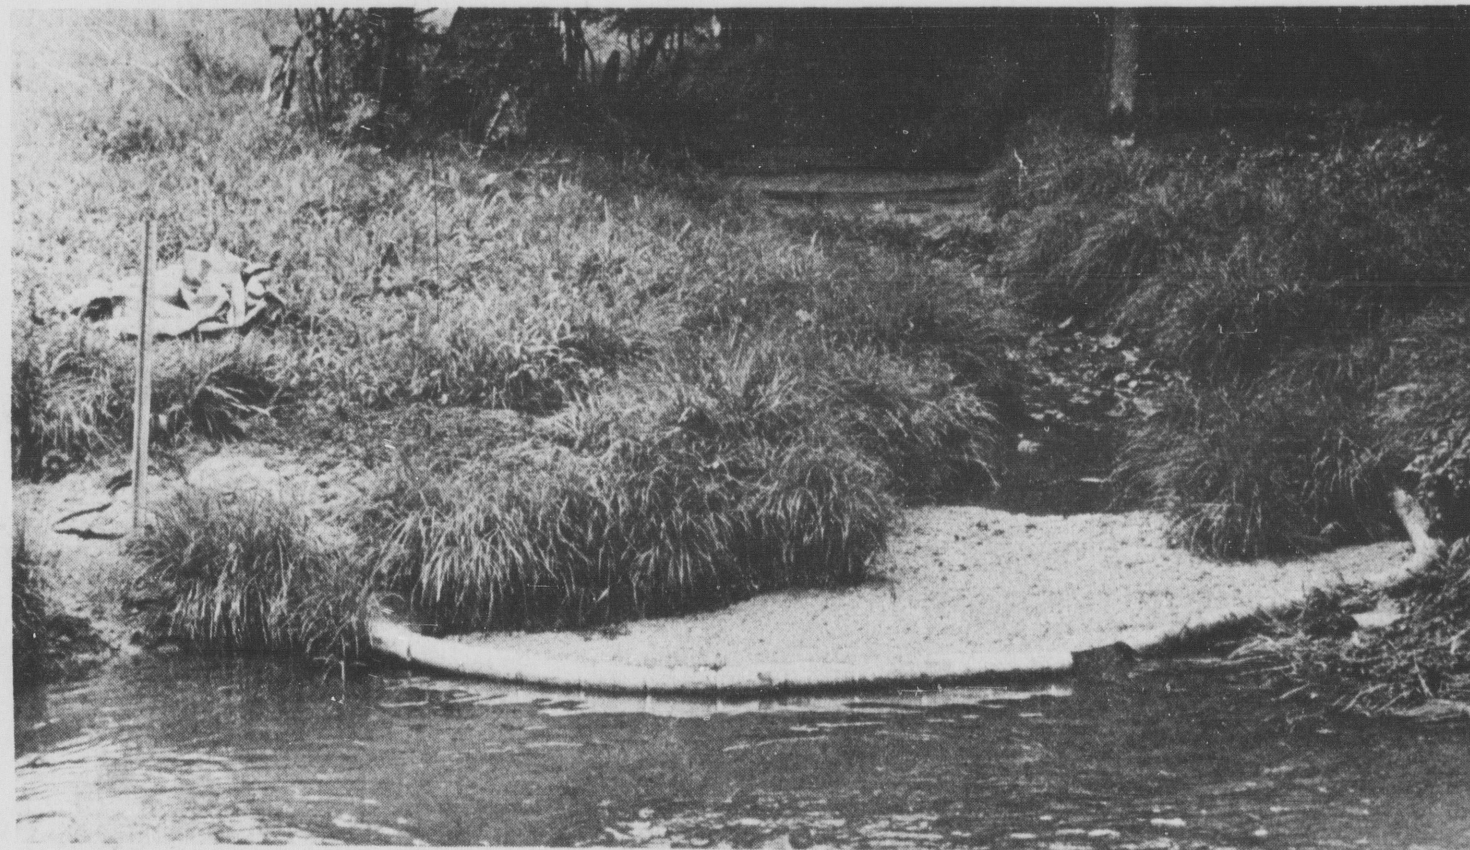

Fourteen new donors also gave blood at the May 22 drive.

Shapp has implied that private sales would bring about more than the $50 million annual profit from state stores because of higher sales volume.

However, Richard Doran, a top Shapp adviser, said the governor's final position "will depend on what he gets from Zubrow."

The state monopoly began in 1935 and claims total profits for the 37 years of $2.5 billion. There are 746 state stores.

Zubrow has dovetailed the liquor study with a consultation contract he has with the Welfare Department. The contract provides $100-a-day expenses with a $21,000-a-year expense limit.

Baffles Used To Contain Spill

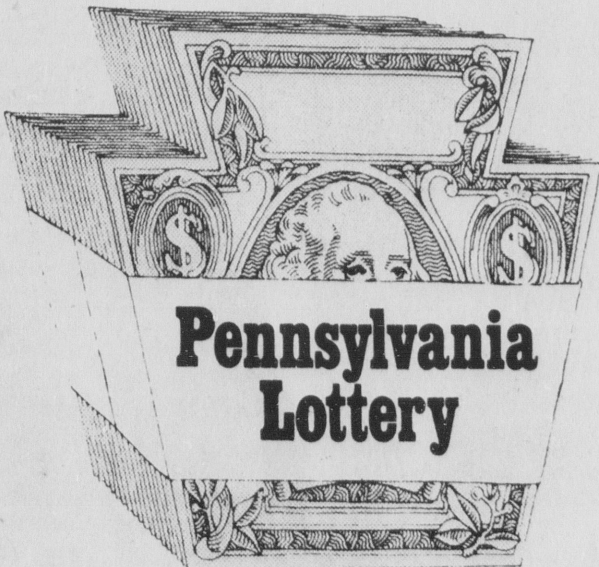

Despite periodic baffles and huge quantities of absorbent material and straw, workmen could not prevent oil from spilling into the Allegheny Reservoir Friday. Work will continue throughout the week to clean up the escaped oil. (Photos courtesy of Tom Groutage)

This COUPON can put your gas bills on the level

During the cold winter months between November and April, you consume up to 85% of the gas energy you use all year. And that means, of course, that you're paying up to 85% of your total yearly gas bill during that same period.

Now if you're like most people, you work on a budget which is easier to control when you level out as many household expenses as you can. Realizing that, we offer our Easy Payment Plan... a gas bill balancer. But we're going one step further than just offering you the Plan. We're giving you the opportunity to join it now instead of July when it normally begins, thus leveling out your gas bills for the balance of the winter. This way, you'll be paying a fixed amount each month based on your estimated usage until June. And that's when we make the adjustment that assures you of paying only for the gas you've actually used. If the weather is warmer than normal, for example, you could even wind up with a credit.

But the big thing about our Easy Payment Plan is that right up until the June adjustment, you'll know exactly what your monthly gas bill will be. And when the Plan begins again in July, your monthly payments will be lower than those you've made for the balance of this year.

So anything — like the Easy Payment Plan — which makes budgeting easier for you should be invaluable... but it's free. Just clip the coupon and mail or include with your next payment. We'll do the rest.

Watson Grange Gives Service Pins

Ruth Billsborough received a pin from County Commissioner James Marshall Saturday in recognition of her 60 years of continuous service to Watson Grange.

The presentation was made at the Grange's Community Get-Together, which was attended by over 100 people. The evening included a tureen dinner, and presentation of 25 year pins to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Snavey, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Strom, Lottie Chapel, J.H. Hollabaugh, William Snavey, Don Snavey, Lewis Quest, and Mrs. Roger Lindell.

Marshall presented Kelly Hollabaugh with trees which Watson Grange had received for presenting program to various granges. Watson Grange received a tree for presenting an Ecology program at Columbus Grange and Watson Junior Grange received a tree for having a seating drill at the same meeting.

Trees were presented by Pomona Lecturer, Hope Nelson, to the host grange, to the grange who had the program, and to the grange who filled the chairs. Each grange is responsible for planting the trees, either on Grange property or on another suitable plot of ground.

Music for the evening was provided by Kenny Reigard, Bob Higgenbotham and Sheron VanPelt.

Mrs. Paul Kelly was awarded the quilt by Woman's Activity Chairman, Mrs. Florence Spencer.

ACHILLES' HEEL

According to mythology, this fellow Achilles had a mother who held him by the heel and dipped him into the River Styx to make him invulnerable. Then wouldn't you know he'd get shot in the heel, and with a poisonous dart too.

I think maybe that myth arose from the fact that the human heel is so naturally vulnerable and tender anyway (ever step on a tack or a rock with your heel? Ouch!). As a matter of fact when any part of your feet hurt, you feel miserable. That's why proper shoe fitting is important for your complete body comfort. Cramped toes and arches can cause corns, calluses, aches and pains. It could also ruin your pleasant disposition. Let us fit your next shoes to shield you against Achilles' heel.

Got An Itch?

Everybody, at some time or other, has an itch even if it is due only to an insect bite, prickly heat, or an allergy to soaps, detergents or cosmetics.

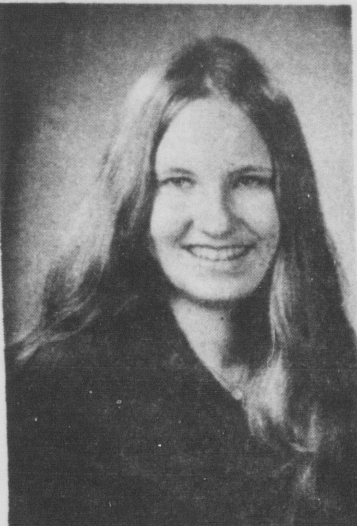

When an itch is persistent, cause must be found and eliminated. Itching all over the body may be a sign of kidney disease, anemia, diabetes, leukemia or nervousness. Localized itching chiefly involves the pelvic area, but it can affect any part of the body.

Scratching seemingly relieves the itch but at the risk of spreading an infection. There are several effective salves, ointments and sprays sold for itching. If the itching persists, see your doctor for specific prescription.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: That letter from "Ohio Teen" could have been written by me. I am also a high school senior who hates to kiss a guy who has a moustache or a beard. But let's be honest—we girls are responsible for all that hair.

It all started when the Beatles came to this country and the teenyboppers shrieked, fainted and went completely ape over the group. The American boys felt they had to imitate the Beatles to win the favor of the girls. So they let their hair grow long and the inevitable happened. In true American style "bigger is better and most is best."

The youth of our nation became hair-worshippers. Hair became a symbol of the New Culture, independence and rebellion. Most parents hated it. Sample dialogue: "Get a haircut or leave this house."

So now it's up to the girls to get rid of the hairy problem. And it IS a problem. Keeping all that hair clean is work, and most guys don't bother. We girls must now say, "Off with the brush—or there'll be no kisses." Are you with me, Ann? —The All Clear In Eau Claire

Dear Claire: I don't need to be with you. There's nobody with a beard or moustache I care to kiss. But lots of luck.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A few years ago we went to Canada for a vacation. There was a guided tour—courtesy of the motel. The guide kept referring to the Canadian side of the Falls and the American side of the Falls. My father called the guide's attention to the fact that Canada is just as much a part of America as the United States.

This is my question, Ann: The inhabitants of South America, Central America and North America are Americans. The inhabitants of Canada are also Canadians. The people of Mexico are called Mexicans. But what are the people of the United States called—other than Americans? —Lansing Query

DEAR Q.: U.S. citizens.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have waged a most successful campaign against drop-in-visitors who don't even knock, for which we congratulate you. Many people who thought they owed it to friends and relatives to be on a 24-hour call have come to realize that they were being taken advantage of. Your columns gave them the courage to put an end to it. Now will you do something for those of us who own small yachts?

A great many landlubbers don't know it's not only bad manners, but a legal offense to set foot on a boat until the words "come aboard" are spoken. For those who don't wish to shout, a light knock on the hull can be heard. And now the matter of shoes. It is an unspeakable gaffe to come aboard a yacht wearing ordinary street shoes. It could cause permanent damage to painted and varnished surfaces.

I am aware that a rather small segment of your readers own yachts but since you are read by people in every walk of life I felt this was the very place to go for help to get my message across. —Old Salt In Key West

Dear Salt: Never let it be said that I discriminated against the rich. Here is your letter—for the one tenth of one per cent.

Does someone you love have a problem with drugs? Send $1.00 and a self-addressed, long envelope (16 cents postage) to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago 60654 for her booklet "STRAIGHT DOPE ON DRUGS." It tells both sides...the ups, downs, insides and outs of drug use. MAKE YOUR OWN decisions.

A pause for reflection at the opening gun might have proved highly profitable as well as refreshing to East in defending against South's six spade contract.

South's jump rebid of three spades is forcing to game after North's two-over-one response. When the latter trotted out a second suit by bidding four clubs, South checked back for aces via Blackwood. The five no trump bid announces that the partnership has all the top controls. Had North shown a sufficient number of kings, it was South's intention to go all the way. When his partner turned out to be kingless, however, he was obliged to settle for a small slam in spades.

West opened the eight of diamonds, an effective choice, for with any other lead, declarer has time to set up North's clubs for two discards. The deuce of diamonds was played from dummy and East put up the jack to win the trick.

Without a moment's deliberation, East made the natural shift to a heart and South played the ace. Trumps were drawn with four pulls as North discarded hearts and clubs. A diamond was led to the ace and then the queen was returned. East followed with the six, declarer sluffed the queen of hearts and West showed out. Another diamond brought forth East's king which was ruffed in the closed hand. The ace of clubs put North in to cash the ten of diamonds on which South sluffed his remaining club. He claimed the rest with good trumps, having lost one diamond trick.

East was in position to defeat the slam by returning a diamond at trick two. Altho this temporarily sacrifices a trick, it effectively prevents the establishment of the suit. If South overtakes the nine of diamonds with dummy's ten to lead a third round, he cannot ruff with the nine of spades without subjecting himself to an overruff. If he trumps with the jack, on the other hand, West's ten becomes established as an eventual winner.

If South wins the diamond return in his hand at trick three with the nine, in order to draw trumps, it is presumed that he will enter dummy with the ace of clubs to cash the ace of diamonds. When the suit does not divide evenly, he may discard a club from his hand and then resort to the heart finesse. When this fails, he is set by one trick.

Household Inventory Good Protection

By AP Newsfeatures
If you had to make a list of every item in your wardrobe — coats, dresses, suits, slacks, lingerie — all of it — could you do it? Then could you list all the books in your library, or all the knickknacks you picked up on your last vacation?

Who would ask you to make a list like that? Your insurance company. It's the only way they have of figuring out how much to pay you for what possessions have been destroyed.

That's why insurance companies and their agents advise their customers to make a list of their possessions — furniture, books, china, clothing — everything. And they further advise those with homeowners or tenants insurance to keep this list in a safe place.

George M. Snyder, vice president of Insurance Co. of North America recalls once when he was sent out to see a family whose home had been destroyed by fire.

"Together we made up a list of things the family had lost," he said. "It took hours to put together. Several days later, the woman phoned my office to tell me they'd completely forgotten to list the contents on one room in the house. As unlikely a story as that may seem, it happens all the time."

But even a number of insurance people admit they haven't done a home inventory. Why? Because it's tedious, time consuming and difficult to update.

One way to accomplish the same thing, however, is with photographs. Open the closet doors, spread out your clothes a little so a corner of each thing is in view and, click! Now turn around and photograph the bookcase on the other side of the room. And keep going until you have a visual record of your entire house or apartment.

Tuck the photos in an envelope and take them to your safety deposit box or another safe place. Then make a note on your calendar to update your visual list in a year, either with new photos or a list of things you've acquired in the last year.

Keep records for important purchases, too. Get appraisals for antiques, or anything else of

SUMMER DIET CAN BE EASY

Ready to go on a diet so you can be certain to squeeze into last summer's swim suit? Before you do, try this easy means of cutting down on daily calories: list all the extras that you eat during the day — the Danish at coffee breaks, the tidbits as you feed the baby, the cold drinks in the afternoon, the many "nibbles" as you prepare dinner, and the "just a snack" at bedtime. When you total these calories, you may be surprised how they count up and add to your daily total. Just cutting out these "in-betweens" may be a good way to lose some weight before swimming days arrive without depriving yourself of necessary nutrients.

Today's Best Bets

By RUTH LINDBERG

Buddy Ebsen, best known as Jed of "The Beverly Hillbillies," admits there's one thing he'd rather do than act—and that's sail. Ebsen, an experienced sailor and author of a book on sailing titled "Polynesian Concept," tries to turn Dinah Shore and the viewing audience into sailing enthusiasts when he is a guest on "Dinah's Place" at 10 a.m. on WGR, WJAC and WICU.

On the pre-taped show, Ebsen talks about his catamaran, named the Polynesian Concept, prepares slungullion in Dinah's kitchen and sings sailor songs.

Ben Cartwright (Lorne Greene) faces a tough decision when he needs the services of a man he recognizes as a wartime deserter in "Danger Road," this week's episode of "Ponderosa," taken from the Aug. 23, 1970 telecast.

Though he is still bitter toward Gurney (Robert Lansing) who served as his gunnery sergeant during the war and later supposedly deserted to the enemy, Ben agrees to let the man—a skilled wagon-master—haul Ponderosa timber. Gurney refuses payment for the job in a show of gratitude of Ben for not revealing his true identity to townspeople and the two become partners in yet another endeavor.

The Golden Years of television with Milton Berle, Dom DeLuise and singer Freda Payne are featured on "The Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour," at 7:30 p.m. on WFBG and WSEE. The same program will be seen on WBEN at 8 p.m.

Comedy highlights include spoofs of "The Honeymooners" and "Sergeant Bilko," a spy story with Glen the star and Milton the battered stand-in; recollections of famous bloopers; and blackouts of TV Westerns. Also, the Mike Curb Congregation leads the audience in a Mitch Miller-style singalong.

Glen's songs this week include "Moon River," and "Dear Hearts and Gentle People." I personally feel that one show during the season should be a solid hour of Glen singing.

During World War II, two Allied officers work to learn the detonation secret of a German mine in "The Enemy on the Beach," to be colorcast on "NBC Action Playhouse" at 8:30 p.m. on WGR, WJAC, WICU.

Sherlock Holmes fans should like the "ABC Movie of the Week," on WKBW at 8:30 p.m. as it will present "The Hound of the Baskervilles" starring Stewart Granger as Sherlock Holmes and Bernard Fox as Dr. Watson. A Conan Doyle's classic concerns a family curse and a vicious hound that prowls the moors near Baskerville Hall.

Tuesday television will be a great day for political followers, beginning with "The Today Show" at 7 a.m. on NBC stations which will originate live from Los Angeles, Calif. Frank McGee and Barbara Walters will cover developments in the California primary.

In the evening, all three of the major networks will present special programs on the California Primary, which will decide the destinies of Hubert H. Humphrey and George McGovern, front-runners in the Democratic race. NBC (WGR, WJAC, WICU) and CBS (WBEN, WFBG, WSEE) will begin coverage at 11:30 p.m. and continue till the outcome is decided; ABC (WKBE) will begin coverage at 1 a.m.

Your Individual Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars. FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 6, 1972

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20)—If faced with a quick change or unexpected suggestion, don't reject summarily. Maintain poise and consider all factors before making a decision.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21)—An excellent period for broadening your outlook, introducing new ideas and systems into your regular program. But do not switch position or tactics in a way that betokens instability.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—Use that quick-thinking mind of yours to prevent errors and keep you from acting hastily or impulsively. Consider a new outlet for your talents.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—Capitalize on present trends; convert to superior methods where feasible. But do not make drastic changes in projects now running smoothly.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23)—Map out a clearly defined program devoid of time-wasters. Accommodate to necessary changes, but emphasize stick-to-itiveness.

ROMANCE and travel favored. VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)—Helpful influences, but you will have to be alert, nonetheless. You may have to try a new tack or make changes in pre-set plans, but they should be for the better.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)—Especially favored under day's somewhat unusual but, on the whole, friendly aspect: Secretarial and clerical work; mathematics, artistry and science generally.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)—Stretch a point where it will pay off later. A vote of confidence is sometimes necessary to secure cooperation. Maintain a steady hand and a discerning eye.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)—Mixed competition—but in a subtle manner. Advancement notable in economics, industry, sales, educational pursuits.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—Mixed planetary influences give a total of picture of alternating apathy, readiness, indecision, enthusiasm. Firm up!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—You may now experience a sense of frustration, along with boredom and fretfulness. Your keen mind and innate good sense can, should, strongly counteract.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20)—Some earnings and credits may be less than expected, but the general outlook is excellent for benefits through sustained efforts over a period of time.

YOU BORN TODAY: Versatility and activity are the Gemini's keynotes and those of you whose birthdate this is are most typical of your Sign. You are innately energetic, concise, skillful and always effective in your endeavors. The duality of the "twins," who symbolize this sector of the zodiac, is best expressed in your personality—lighthearted and an interesting conversationalist usually, but contemplative and even moody at others. You have a great love of people and travel, and could succeed in any field which takes you afar and involves dealing with the public. You could also make a success of the law, the theater, art, literature or music. Birthdate of John A. Roebling, engineer (designer of the Brooklyn Bridge); Pierre Corneille, Fr. dramatist.

How To Keep Well

Hospitals Of Tomorrow

By Dr. T.R. Van Dellen

Hospitals must be built with future needs in mind. All too often, new institutions are obsolete before their doors are opened. Changes in health care methods and licensing regulations also must be anticipated. At this writing, many cities have more than enough beds. However, changes in distribution are needed.

For many years, half the patients in hospitals stayed too long and frequently did not need such expensive care to begin with. Hospitalization and service plans can be blamed, because these groups refused to insure people for out-patient or home care. Had facilities been available, the majority could have been housed in a nearby hotel or motel and received the same medical care at half the price. In other words, the key gain of having these facilities available will be less expensive outpatient (ambulatory) care.

Meanwhile, the hospitals will update the more expensive intensive care units where staff and equipment are geared to provide life-saving services to victims of heart attacks, strokes, burns and other conditions that carry a high risk. There will be special sections for surgery, women, children, rehabilitation and psychiatric problems. Emergency rooms will take up considerable space and in all probability will be run by full-time salaried physicians with special training in trauma. This may include an ambulance service with trained crews who know how to handle the injured and acutely ill.

Certain hospitals in metropolitan areas will have artificial kidney units; others will have blood and tissue banks, cancer treatment centers, or extensive automated laboratory facilities. Duplication should be avoided. The X-ray departments of today are prepared to do a variety of highly technical and sophisticated procedures.

Specialized care of any type is very expensive, but the costs need not be shared by every patient in the institution. Savings can be realized if those in need of routine care eat in a communal dining room, take their own showers, turn down the beds and tidy the rooms or recuperate in motel facilities.

TOMORROW: Soft Contact Lenses

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

PLANT ALLERGY
Miss G writes: When the spring grasses and weeds start growing, I get clear blisters on my ankles. They break and the area itches, then blisters form again. This goes on all summer. Since I must take care of the lawn and garden, would you have any advice on prevention?

REPLY

Consider moving to an apartment if you are this sensitive to grasses and weeds. However, consult an allergist or dermatologist before making drastic changes. There are other causes for blisters that develop in warm weather.

Hints from Heloise

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

After reading the tip in your column from the lady who uses a suction cup under her dip dish (to hold it securely when dips are served), I realized that possibly not everyone knew of my do-it-yourself hors d'oeuvre trays.

I use florist clay on the bottom of any dish in my cupboard (glass, pottery, brass or silver)—makes an elegant tray for chips and dips. No need to buy the expensive ones that are hard-to-store since they are all in one piece.

I also use this trick to build three-tiered epergnes for floral or fruit centerpieces, using successively smaller trays and dishes separated by footed or pedestal-type dishes. Use your imagination and search your cupboards—you'll have an elegant and dramatic table setting and all for the small price of a package of floral clay bought at any florist or most variety stores.

The bonus in this is the pride you feel when people rave about your invention!

If you have difficulty removing the residue of the clay from your dishes when you separate them again, I found that any cleaning fluid does a terrific job.

Alice

You're just the greatest, Alice, and so is your little "do-it-yourself" hors d'oeuvre tray...

from-the-garden" flavor.

Health Maintenance Organizations

By Sylvia Porter

Mounting numbers of Americans are now getting the opportunity to join "Health Maintenance Organizations"—organizations of doctors, hospitals and others offering a given population a wide range of health services in exchange for a flat fee paid in advance, usually monthly or quarterly.

The HMO could be the best possible preview of a future nationwide system of medical care for the U.S. It could give us vital clues to what services we might be offered, what costs might be involved—and what problems to anticipate.

What might you expect? SERVICES. Virtually all you might need—with such exceptions as long-term psychiatric care, dental care and maternity costs. Or you might be asked to pay nominal fees for each day in the hospital or each visit to the doctor.

FEES. If you're a family of four, a monthly cost between $35 and $60. If you're an individual, a monthly cost ranging between $15 and $30.

To give you a more specific idea of the future of the HMO in the U.S., here's a rundown on some of the biggest and best plans now in operation. It was put together by the Blue Cross Assn.

THE KAISER FOUNDATION HEALTH PLAN. 30 years old; has 2,100,000 members in California, Oregon, Hawaii, Ohio and Colorado; 2,000 doctors participate; foundation also owns and operates a string of hospitals in areas it serves.

Among key services covered: hospitalization, doctor visits, eye exams, physical therapy, x-rays, lab tests, hospital physicians and surgeons, visiting nurses. Certain services only partially covered: you pay $5 for each doctor's visit at home, $150 for having a baby, half your hospital room bills after 125 days.

Key restrictions: patients must choose a Kaiser doctor and the plan's facilities—or pay for outside care.

Typical cost: $35-to-$50 a month for family of three, working out to $420-to-$600 a year.

HEALTH INSURANCE PLAN OF GREATER NEW YORK. Has about 750,000 members, about half of them city employees; contracts with Blue Cross for hospital services; offers a total package similar to the Kaiser Foundation's.

Key exclusions: Dental care, long-term psychotherapy; "high option" plan allows only $200 toward hospital charges for having a baby; patient also pays a portion of costs of night home calls.

Costs of 121-day HIP Blue Cross plan: $565.56 a year for a family of three or more, $226.32 a year for a single employee, $491.16 for a couple.

GROUP HEALTH COOPERATIVE OF PUGET SOUND: country's largest health cooperative, headquartered in Seattle, owned and run by patients themselves; nearly 150,000 subscribers; about 145 physicians, one large hospital and seven smaller clinics.

Services: virtually all are covered, from drugs and surgery to house calls, although there are extra charges for having a baby and for extended psychotherapy. Preventive medicine stressed; physicians work on salaries of $25,000 to $50,000.

Costs: about $200 in initiation fees for a family and about $530 a year to subscribe.

HARVARD COMMUNITY HEALTH PLAN: Launched in 1969, serves Boston and 39 neighboring communities, uses four Harvard teaching hospitals in Boston; 23,000 enrollees who prepay for coverage, with Blue Cross providing the bulk of the coverage.

Services: all major hospital services, including surgery and physician care and post-discharge rehabilitation. Patients pay small amounts for most services (e.g., $1 for each doctor visit, $3 for an off-hour's emergency visit, $5 for a house call).

Costs: $57 a month for a family, $20.50 for an individual. Many employers through whom group coverage is offered pay half or more of the fees.

Other plans are springing up from coast to coast. The HMO is news and hot. This demands your attention.

Tomorrow: health insurance bafflebag guide.

Bad News Sends Market Into Skid

NEW YORK (AP) — Politics, profit taking, and disappointing economic news were credited by stock market analysts with driving prices down sharply Monday. Trading was moderate.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 7 points to close at 954.39. Declines on the New York Stock Exchange led advances by more than 2 to 1.

Some analysts blamed the drop partly on concern by some investors over the possibility of a victory by South Dakota Sen. George McGovern in the California Presidential primary Tuesday.

"There's some apprehension over the success McGovern has had so far," said Newton Zinder, analyst for E. F. Hutton & Co. Added Bradbury K. Thurlow, analyst for Hoppin, Watson Inc.: "Wall Street is very averse to experimenting with the economy as McGovern proposed."

News that inflation and unemployment last month were at about the same rate as they were before economic controls were imposed last August was cited as another depressant by analysts.

The losers included airlines, drugs, electronics, metals and glamour issues. All other groups were mixed.

The most-active issue was American Airlines, off 1 1/2 at 43 1/4 on a volume of 391,000 shares. A 261,000-share block of the issue—the largest of the session—traded at 41 1/2.

Other issues in the most-active list included Curtiss Wright, off 2 1/2 at 39 1/4; UAL Inc., off 1/2 at 45 1/4; Delta Air Lines, off 2 1/2 at 53; and Braniff Airways, off 1/2 at 17 1/2.

Of the 1,757 issues traded on the Big Board, 986 declined and 458 advanced. New yearly lows were reached by 72 issues and highs by 26.

Of the 1,211 issues traded on the American Stock Exchange, 647 declined, and 269 advanced.

Big Board turnover declined to 13.45 million shares from 15.41 million shares Friday. On the American Stock Exchange, volume rose to 4.63 million shares from 4.52 million shares Friday.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,300 common stocks declined 0.50 to 60.45. The American Stock Exchange index dropped 0.12 to 27.73. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index dropped .91 to 108.82.

Name Woman To Conduct WCDA Land Use Survey

Henry McConnell, president of the Warren County Development Association, announced Monday the signing of a contract agreement between Mrs. Eileen Johnson of 1284 Conewango avenue and the Development Association for a six month period, for the purpose of conducting a comprehensive land use survey of Warren County.

In making the announcement, McConnell stated, "Mrs. Johnson is highly qualified for this position. She received her B.A. in social science from Alverno College in Milwaukee, Wisconsin and received her masters in sociology from Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio. Mrs. Johnson has also done Doctoral work at the University of Delaware in Newark, Delaware. Her broad background of experience and ability to get the raw data necessary to carry out the task and coalesce it into useful information makes her an asset to the association."

"W.C.D.A. has been searching for an individual of this caliber for several months" continued McConnell, "in order to establish a library which would outline all the land in the county which has potential industrial and/or commercial development possibilities. We are attempting to gather such information as locations, zoning, soil content, physical conditions, highway networks, and availability of utilities, so that a full fledged effort of industrial and commercial development might be made in the future" continued McConnell.

Mrs. Johnson, who will be working on a contract basis under the supervision of Richard H. Danzig, the association's executive director, will be working closely with all municipal governments in Warren County and the local utility companies to carry out her work.

Periodic progress reports will be made to the Development Association's board of directors with the final maps, reports and summary being completed by December 1, 1972.
